U.S. Resumes Laos Bombing

TINH BIEN, Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese armored vehicles and helicopters swept back and forth across the Cambodian border near here Monday.

Sharp fighting was reported deeper inside Cambodia between government troops and Communist command forces along Highway 1 east of Phnom Penh. Thirty-two Cambodian soldiers, including three top officers, were reported killed.

Dispatches from Laos reported a heavy outbreak of fighting on the strategic Plain of Jars. A combined force of Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese overran three government positions. The Defense Ministry in Vientiane said.

In Washington, Pentagon sources reported U. S. warplanes had launched air attacks on the positions taken over by the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese forces. The informants said B52 bombers and swinging F111 fighter-bombers hit near the town of Tha Vieng, south of the Plain of Jars. American air strikes in Laos ended after the two sides in that conflict agreed to a cease-fire on Feb. 23.

Earlier, the Pentagon said the attacks in Laos were "a major violation of the cease-fire" and it warned North Vietnam the United States might renew bombing in Laos.

The U. S. Pacific Command in Honolulu said B52 bombers continued strikes in Cambodia Monday for the 41st day.

About 25 South Vietnamese armored vehicles wheeled across the South Vietnamese border near here into Cambodia following intelligence reports that a Communist division had moved into a cluster of boulder-strewn hills rising out of the border flatlands.

Despite witness accounts to the contrary, some local commanders and Saigon command spokesmen deny their forces have crossed the frontier. The border was later sealed off to newsmen.

"We are conducting a screening operation," said Col. Hoang Duc Ninh, who commands South Vietnamese forces in four border provinces.

He gave no explanation for the ban on newsmen, except that it had "come from Saigon." Col. Ninh is a cousin of President Nguyen Van Thieu. Ninh's brother, Hoang Duc Nha, is one of Thieu's closest advisers.

Ninh reported his troops had captured a North Vietnamese sergeant and his interrogation revealed that elements of Hanoi's 1st Division had moved into the hills just inside Cambodia.

Several villages at the foot of the hills have been burned and hundreds of Cambodian refugees fled into South Vietnam.

Ninh maintained his forces have not crossed into Cambodia since the Jan. 27 cease-fire, but he did not say where the North Vietnamese sergeant was taken prisoner.

Dr. Brown Resigns Post At Union College

Dr. Robert H. Brown, president of Union College, announced Monday afternoon that he is resigning his position as head of that institution.

In a surprise move Dr. Brown revealed to the college board that he will be accepting a position as director of the Geoscience Research Institute for The Seventh-day Adventist's World Church.

President Brown has been with the college for the past 3 years. Prior to his service here he was vice-president of Student Affairs in Walla Walla College, near Walla Walla, Wash.

R. H. Nightingale, chairman of the College Board of Trustees, stated that the board is now working on a replacement and the president elect will be announced in the near future. During Dr. Brown's 3 years here many improvements have been made on the college campus.

Among these can be listed the establishment of Harris Pine

Perhaps the most important development of the last three years, however, has been the culmination of plans to construct a new administration-classroom building. Contracts have now been awarded and the groundbreaking ceremonies took place last Friday.

NIXON ... skirts economic issues in addressing construction men.

Meany Says Nixonomics Total 'Miserable Failure'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon thanked "hard hat" labor leaders Monday for supporting his Vietnam policies but drew a stinging attack from AFL-CIO President George Meany for failing to curb inflation.

Meany called the administration's economic game plan Phase One through Phase Three "a complete miserable failure," and declared the only hope is for Congress to approve legislation rolling back all prices, interest rates and rents and curbing excess business profits.

There can be no equity for the working man as long as wage increases are held to 5.5 per cent while prices skyrocket, Meany told delegates to the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department's annual legislative conference.

In his speech, Nixon skirted economic issues. He stressed instead on the need to hold down government spending and thanked the construction workers for backing him on Vietnam.

Nixon said he was giving it to them "straight from the shoulder," in explaining why he recently vetoed legislation including the vocational rehabilitation act, to hold down government spending

"It's no pleasure for a President of the United States to veto a spending bill," he said. But if spending goes unchecked, taxes will go up, prices will rise and unemployment will increase, he said.

There are some, he said, who would curb spending by trimming the Pentagon budget. However, Nixon said, "those who would slash the defense budget today ... and make us a second rate power will have to take on their hands the responsibility for sabotaging peace initiatives that seem so promising" with the Soviet Union and China.

House Rejects Price Rollback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted a one-year extension of President Nixon's economic powers Monday, rejecting all proposals for price freezes or rollbacks.

The vote was 293 to 114.

The House action, following passage of a similar bill by the Senate, gives Nixon a thumping triumph in his confrontation with the Democratic-controlled Congress on the cost of living issue. Some Democrats ruefully noted this during the debate.

The possibility remained that the bill finally enacted, after a House-Senate conference, will contain some mandatory rent control section. The Senate bill was a limited provision.

Nixon and the practically solid House Republicans held out for a one-year extension of the President's discretionary control powers, which expire April 30, with no strings tied.

Negotiating teams for the Lincoln Board of Education and the Lincoln Education Association have reached a tentative agreement on next year's salaries and fringe benefits, Supt. John Prasch said Monday.

He said the agreement, if approved by the LEA board of directors and the school board, would mean Lincoln teachers would be in line for increases next year of about 5.5% in salaries plus a slight increase in fringe benefits.

The school board is to consider the package at a meeting Tuesday morning.

Most of the increased dollars in the proposal would go for salaries, since the only additional fringe benefit would be

The House bill comes close to this. One amendment adopted provides that, when wage control actions result in a reduction in actual pay or in negotiated settlements, a public hearing must be provided.

Republicans scented victory early in the prolonged debate when they won a 158-147 procedural vote that derailed a painfully worked out Democratic compromise that would have rolled prices back to the March 16 levels, rents to Jan. 10.

They pushed on to offer the one-year extension as an alternate to a bill, already abandoned by the Democratic leadership.

That would have provided a general rollback to Jan. 10 levels. Democrats tried a provision for a ceiling on all but farm prices as of Monday's levels. It lost, 263 to 139. A proposal for a two-month extension, with a mandate to Nixon to come up in that time with a comprehensive stabilization program, went down, 253 to 151.

Various rent freeze proposals next were defeated.

Republicans answered all pleas for a Congress-mandated control program with the argument that the lawmakers should not deny the executive flexibility.

A small increase in health insurance premium contributions. The tentative agreement would boost that amount from the current $13.50 to $15 per month, while the premium cost to the employee would remain the same.

The LEA dropped all other requests for fringe benefit improvements, including one for an increase in the death benefit and several other fringe benefit proposals.

Supt. Prasch, who chairs the negotiating sessions, said the range of percentage increases for individual employees would vary from 2.58% to 7.64%.

The dollar increase would vary from $260 to $770.

The district's base salary would go from the current $6,950 to $7,135. The base is the salary

Council Impounds Funds For NE Radial

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday impounded all funds appropriated to the Northeast Radial for the remainder of the fiscal year.

A little more than $500,000 is involved. Council action means that no more property will be acquired by the city for the radial right-of-way until next year, except for completing contractual obligations.

Additionally, the council went on record opposing "Amendment No. 2," which will be on the

May 1 general election ballot

That amendment calls for a re-evaluation of all street projects in excess of $15 million, sets planning procedures for implementation of such projects and requires the unanimous vote of the council or a majority vote of the people before construction can begin.

The Northeast Radial is projected to cost $30 million.

The council's action impounding the funds was an "attempt to show the city's good faith" in allowing the electorate to be heard on the charter amendment, City Attorney Dick Wood said.

paid teachers with no experience who hold bachelors degrees

Salary increases are provided on the basis of additional experience and added college credits.

Prasch said the proposal would mean an "overall average" increase in salaries of about 5.5%, plus the $1.50 per person additional amount for health insurance premiums.

The overall average is calculated on the basis of the total dollars it will cost the school district for all increases assuming all this year's teachers come back in the fall.

The actual dollar increase will vary from that somewhat when teacher turnover and other factors are taken into account.

Carpenter, Marvel Guide Swift Action

...Senators Aim For Early Adjournment

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Tempted by the prospect of an election year reduction in tax rates, the Legislature Monday decided to adopt Gov. J. James Exon's operational budget bill and go home.

Aiming for final adjournment this week, senators pushed the governor's bill almost to the point of no return, rushing it over two floor hurdles without a word of explanation or discussion.

The bill, LB259, will be ready for final reading Wednesday.

Carpenter, Marvel Monday's swift series of events, engineered by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff with the willing assistance of Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings, left opponents of the action only two nights to change senatorial minds.

If the Legislature goes ahead with its plan to adjourn for good on Thursday, more than 200 bills now on the floor — including abortion control, capital punishment and additional state aid to schools — will be held for consideration in the 1974 session.

And there would be no funding for capital improvements during the coming fiscal year.

Acceptance of the governor's operational budget recommendations over those proposed by the Appropriations Committee would also reduce the University of Nebraska's anticipated budget by more than $1 million, cut several hundred thousand dollars from state college budgets, and provide less community care money for the mentally retarded.

$16 Million At Stake
NU has $16 million at stake in the capital construction recommendations of the legislative fiscal staff.

Whether lobbyists interested in pending bills and state officials hoping for alternative budget proposals can head off the Legislature's action by Thursday is uncertain.

The lobbyist section in the legislative balcony filled up Monday afternoon after word made the rounds. The Statehouse Rotunda also became the scene of urgent buttonholing.

Monday's sudden chain of events was triggered by the unexpected appearance of Exon before the Legislature, holding out the prospect of sharply reduced state sales and income tax rates if senators would accept his budget recommendations.

Cut Even More
Carpenter suggested they do even more than that — not approve any additional bills or even fund Exon's capital construction budget.

Furthermore, the Legislature instructed Exon to forget any further deficit appropriations requests.

And the $28 million in anticipated federal revenue sharing funds would be held in trust for future obligation.

"Let the people understand what a frugal government is," Carpenter declared. "I don't think they really want it, but this is the only way to find out."

Marvel said of Exon's plan: "That's the best deal that's been proposed to the Legislature in some time."

A parade of senators fell in line with the proposal.

"Going To Laugh"

"When you back down, I'm going to laugh at you," Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha declared.

Carpenter's proposal was approved on a 27-17 vote. Six of eight budget committee members (one was absent) voted for it.

After lunch, with Marvel in the lead, the Legislature voted to reject Appropriations Committee amendments to the governor's bill.

Sen. Richard Proud's request that lawmakers consider the bill line by line "so at least we'll know what's in it" was rejected on an 18-25 count.

Then the bill cleared its initial floor test on a 37-8 vote.

"Ridiculous Caper"

Proud then suggested that lawmakers "complete this ridiculous caper" by cutting the governor's budget by 10% in order to reduce taxes even further. That motion was buried on a 4-34 vote.

The bill then jumped its second test on a 29-15 count and is scheduled to show up next on final reading.

Monday's debate centered on handing both budget and taxing responsibilities to Exon.

"We should hold the governor responsible for meeting the legitimate needs of this state," Sen. John Savage of Omaha said.

"We have an obligation to ease the tax load," Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said.

"Mass Hypnotist"

Monday's action proves that Exon is "a mass hypnotist," Chambers said. And, if it holds up, Proud said, it will "prove that Carpenter runs this Legislature."

If the budget proves insufficient for the fiscal year, Marvel noted, the Legislature will be back in session next January (half way through the fiscal period) to make needed corrections.

Exon has "a thick hide and a nimble footstep," Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said, and is not likely to be trapped by the Legislature.

"We are absolutely abandoning our responsibilities," Proud insisted. "We are saying to the governor that we don't have a Legislature."

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly said the Legislature may only be "sharing irresponsible action with the governor."

If Monday's action holds up, he said, there will be no funding for technical community colleges because new legislation is needed to match the areas funded in Exon's budget bill.

Wood said the city feels that "more is involved in Amendment No. 2 than just the radial."

The council also went on record supporting implementation of a policy "which takes into consideration the social, economic and environmental impact of all highway projects, such as the Northeast Radial."

However, the council strongly disagreed with the proposed amendment "as a means of accomplishing this policy."

The attachment of that rider followed a request from the Lincoln League of Women Voters who urged the council take an even stronger step by applying federal guidelines to all road projects — not just the radial.

League President Pat Stephen noted that Department of Transportation guidelines call for — the study of the social, economic and environmental impact of such road projects.

—the involvement of the public as well as other governmental agencies in planning location and design of the highway and —a consideration of alternative solutions to the roadway.

Mrs. Stephen also urged that the city budget the necessary funds and hire the staff to "expedite the completion of the transportation study and the environmental impact study so that an intelligent decision can be made on future highway construction."

City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis pushed for inclusion of those guidelines in the council's resolution.

However, Councilman Merle Hale disagreed. "Don't confuse the (radial) issue with other projects."

Chavez Launches Effort
In Grape-Rich Valley

COACHELLA, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez' farm worker followers launched a new struggle Monday to represent pickers in the heart of America's table grape country.

With pickets and a threat of a new nationwide grape boycott, Chavez' United Farm Workers Union took the offensive against the Teamsters Union, which announced Sunday it had signed field labor contracts with 85 per cent of the growers in the grape-rich Coachella Valley.

UFWU contracts with the growers, reached in 1970 after two years of boycotts, strikes and some violence, expired Sunday.

Several hundred UFWU workers picketed about 40 vineyards owned by about 12 ranchers Monday. Union officials said twice as many would turn out Tuesday.

The pickets urged workers to come out of the fields, where they were thinning vines in preparation for May's harvest. A few did.

about 80 per cent of the nation's table grape crop during May, June and July.

In a news conference Monday, Chavez called a boycott against "scab-picked" grapes, even though the crop won't be picked until next month.

He said the boycott would last "just as long as it takes" to win over the growers who have signed with the Teamsters.

The Teamsters contend they have the support of 4,000 of the 5,000 field workers employed seasonally in the valley. Chavez disputes the figures, saying only 1,800 workers are now employed in the Southern California valley and that 95 per cent support the UFWU.

The Teamsters say they have signed field worker contracts with 15 growers calling for an immediate pay hike from $2 to $2.30 an hour, climbing to $2.70 in four years.

Chavez said his union has renewed its contract with a group of five growers. The one-year contract provides an immediate raise to $2.40 and, for the first time, a paid holiday, unemployment insurance and a pension plan. Chavez told newsmen.

Chavez conceded that the Teamsters have signed contracts with at least 80 per cent of the growers in the valley and said one or two growers haven't signed with either union. But he said most workers support his union and challenged the Teamsters to put the jurisdictional dispute to a vote of the farm workers.

The Teamsters have the growers, we have the people, he said. "We think the people are the power."

Saboteurs Fail
To Blow Up Pipe

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Unknown saboteurs tried to blow up the Arabian-American Oil Co.'s pipeline Monday, government sources in south Lebanon reported.

Explosive charges went up under the pipeline in a spot four miles from the Zahran terminal causing only dents, the informants added. The flow of oil was not affected.

Army patrols were reported guarding the Lebanese section of the 1,000-mile pipeline which carries oil from Saudi Arabian oilfields to Mediterranean ports in south Lebanon.

The pipeline is also known as Tapline and it carries a half a million barrels of crude oil daily from Saudi Arabia through Jordan and Syria to the Zahran terminal.

Explosives planted by masked raiders early Saturday destroyed one Tapline storage tank, badly damaged two others and slightly damaged a fourth. The ensuing 14-hour fire consumed 30,000 barrels of oil at Tapline's Zahran complex five miles south of the city of Sidon.

The blowing up of the storage tanks came a few hours after Palestinian guerrillas vowed "terrible" reprisals against American interests for the Israeli commando attack into Beirut and Sidon last Tuesday and the killing of three guerrilla leaders.

But the guerrillas disclaimed responsibility and charged that it was the work of Israeli raiders coming by sea. Israel has denied that charge.

A group calling itself the "Lebanese Revolutionary Guard," finally claimed responsibility.

Ellsberg Tells Of Picking Up Papers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg testified Monday that he never intended to copy the Pentagon papers when he first gained access to the top-secret study of the Vietnam war.

Ellsberg, resuming the witness stand in his own defense after a two-day delay caused by his attorney's illness, told the jurors how he picked up 10 volumes of the study at the Rand Corp. in Washington, D.C., on March 3, 1969.

Ellsberg, who was designated an "official courier" to carry the papers to Rand's office in Santa Monica, Calif., said he was going to use the papers in a study he was doing for Rand on "lessons learned in Vietnam."

"At the time you received them (the volumes), did you intend to copy any of these exhibits?" asked Ellsberg's attorney, Leonard Boudin.

"No," answered the defendant, "certainly not."

Defense attorneys estimated their case would be complete by Friday. The government has said it will call rebuttal witnesses to answer the points presented by Ellsberg and codefendant Anthony Russo. The defense began its presentation seven weeks ago and has called 26 witnesses including Ellsberg and Russo.

Original plans to summon two more witnesses to testify following Ellsberg were uncertain on Monday. A defense spokesman said that international law professor Richard Falk of Princeton University is still scheduled to testify. But it appeared that Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., would not be called.

panel also approved a set of guidelines governing the hearings. They will be issued publicly later, he said.

"The committee is agreed on these guidelines so the White House aides will know exactly how to testify if they elect to come down to testify, or if the President permits them," Ervin said.

His statement appeared to dash persistent rumors that agreement was close between the White House and the committee on an "arrangement" allowing those aides to appear. Law Against Bias By Elks Is Upheld Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 Monday against 15 Elks lodges in Maine whose liquor licenses are being revoked by state law on grounds they discriminated against blacks.

The six-member majority refused to hear an appeal by the lodges from an adverse decision by Maine's Supreme Judicial Court.

Justices William O. Douglas, Potter Stewart and Harry A. Blackmun dissented, noting they wanted to hear arguments on the issue and hand down a written opinion.

The Supreme Court decided last June that the Constitution did not apply to state liquor licensing of private fraternal groups even though they practiced discrimination.

But the justices made it clear in a Pennsylvania case earlier this session and in Monday's action that they would not interfere with state laws on the subject. The six-man majority rejected the Elks appeal on grounds it did not present a "substantial federal question."

The court took these other actions: —Let stand a lower federal court decision which allowed a Henrietta, N.Y., high school art teacher to stand mute during recitation of the pledge of allegiance to the flag in a classroom exercise.

—Rejected another bid by Connecticut for reinstatement of its anti-abortion law. The court sharply curtailed criminal laws against abortions in cases from Georgia and Texas Jan. 22.

The Maine Elks case originated under a 1969 state law which forbids racial discrimination by those serving food and drinks except organizations "oriented to a particular religion and are ethnic in character."

Attorneys for the 15 lodges which accept only white males as members claimed the law violated the constitutional guarantee of equal protection under the law and their right of privacy.

They argued the statute "effectively destroys all private clubs whose associational preferences do not coincide with those of the state."

Their appeal described the Elks as a national association "for the advancement of white people" and asked: "Why should the Elks' associational rights be accorded less protection than those of the NAACP?"

SkyLab Moves To Pad

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The mammoth Skylab space station, packed with enough provisions to support nine men for a total of five months in orbit, moved to its launch pad Monday to be prepared for launching May 14.

A large tracked vehicle slowly carried the station, under a protective shroud atop a Saturn 5 rocket, over the 3.5-mile course from assembly building to pad. The trip required six hours.

SkyLab, as large as a five-room house, is to be rocketed into orbit 270 miles high. The next day, May 15, the Skylab 1 crew, Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, will be lifted into space to link up with the laboratory.

The astronauts are to live and work there for 28 days, conducting medical, scientific and earth resources experiments. In August and November, the Skylab 2 and 3 crews are to visit the same station, each for 56 days.

Stockpile Sale OK Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress Monday for authority to sell $4.1 billion of the government's stockpile of metals and raw materials no longer considered vital to the nation's defense.

By selling in the open market hoarded supplies of such commodities as tin, platinum and copper, Nixon said, "we can strike a critical blow for the American consumer."

But the administration indicated that the impact on the rate of inflation generally would be small. They said the stockpiles would be sold gradually over several years.

The President has already announced plans to sell $1.9 billion of the stockpiles, a move he can make without going to Congress. If Congress approves, and the administration should sell the entire additional $4.1 billion, the government would have left $700 million in its strategic stockpiles.

Loan Break Given Small Businesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends Monday announced a dual bank prime lending rate that would give a borrowing break to small businesses.

The large business rate would be allowed to fluctuate according to market conditions the committee said.

The small business rate should remain at present levels "unless an increase can be fully justified by increases in cost," the committee said at a news conference.

It said any increases in the small business rate should be made less frequently than large business rates and should be decidedly smaller.

Production Rises 9.4%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board said Monday industrial production increased by seven-tenths of one per cent in March, up 9.4 per cent from a year ago. It reported wide-spread production gains in consumer goods, business equipment and materials.

In its summary of national business conditions, the Federal Reserve said nonfarm employment and retail sales also advanced in March, while the unemployment rate was down slightly.

The increase in industrial production placed the March figure at 121.7 per cent of the 1967 average.

274 Military Installations Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen say the Pentagon notified them Monday it will close down or cut back 274 military installations by the end of next year in the biggest base cutback since 1970.

The closure will eliminate 21,172 civilian and 16,640 military jobs, a reliable Senate source said after a Pentagon briefing.

A 3-inch thick cutback list obtained by The Associated Press shows two major shipyards in Boston and San Francisco two naval bases, two Air Force bases and at least seven Naval air stations are to be closed down.

The Army will reportedly suffer separate cutbacks this summer when the six U.S. Army commands are reorganized. Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-

Mass., quoted Pentagon officials as saying the base closings and cutbacks will slice $275 million off military spending the first year.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson has so far accepted former secretary Melvin R. Laird's figure of a total longrange $1 billion savings from the cutbacks.

The Pentagon said the cutback is the biggest since March 6, 1970, when it announced cuts at 371 installations eliminating 68,000 civilian and 35,300 military jobs.

The costliest in civilian jobs are close-down of the Boston Naval Shipyard eliminating 6,099 jobs according to the Pentagon list and the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard near San Francisco eliminating 5,184.

The Navy is closing major naval bases including air stations at Long Beach, Calif., and Newport, R. I., for what it calls a savings of $30 million. Ships and air squadrons are to be dispersed to other bases up and down the East and West coasts.

The Laredo and Ramey Air Force bases in Texas and Puerto Rico are to be closed down along with the Fort Wolters Army helicopter training center in Texas.

Naval air stations to be closed down besides those at Newport and Long Beach include the ones at Imperial Beach, Calif., Key West, Florida, Albany and Brunswick, Ga., and Quonset Point, R. I.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

More than anything else, perhaps, the streets and highway charter proposal to be voted upon May 1 demonstrates the growing confrontation between environmentalists and others. And the term "environmentalists" is meant to include those with sociological and economic as well as nature hangups with things as they are now being done.

An environmentalist in matters of streets and highways is one who wants the government to look at a great many more things than have traditionally been a part of the decision-making process in the past. This is not to suggest, however, that the charter amendment would introduce totally new concepts into our roadway work.

The fact is that many of the human considerations sought to be imposed through the charter amendment are already a part of the city's street and highway work as a result of federal planning requirements. And this will become more prominent, not less, regardless of the outcome of the May 1 vote.

That vote seeks to make the city do extensive planning from an environmental and socio-economic point of view on all major street improvement projects. The idea is that if a project does excessive violence to the environment or the prevailing way of life of people, then it may be changed or discarded.

Thus, the only consideration would no longer be the need for moving traffic and the best way of doing it. No one should really have serious disagreement with that idea but this does not mean the charter amendment ought to carry.

While the amendment seeks a worthy goal, it still is questionable on a number of grounds. Only indirectly at best is it a vote on the merits of the Northeast diagonal and electors who decide the question on that issue alone are not taking the most intelligent approach.

The amendment could or could not affect the diagonal, depending upon legal interpretation of the change and upon the official designation of the diagonal as a part of our overall street system. If the diagonal is designated a part of the federal urban aid system and becomes eligible for federal aid funds, the amendment might not apply to it at all.

That is part of the difficulty with the amendment — it is uncertain as to when it applies to various projects. We are inclined to believe the amendment is not as far-reaching as city officials would have you believe but this is a risk we see no point in running.

The amendment is unclear in our minds in the matter of maintenance as opposed to new construction. Also, the amendment would project the city's planning department into a public improvements role that we feel it should not occupy.

This could be a substantial expense to the city as well as an administrative nightmare in the years ahead.

Finally, where the amendment calls for a unanimous decision by the City Council on projects costing more than $15 million, it is approaching an absurdity. Unanimous council-voting requirements in the city charter, on anything, are inherently unwelcome and potentially dangerous.

We ought to remember that the growing emphasis on the environment is a movement of still an embryonic nature, there is no clear and fundamental understanding of where we want to be 10 and 25 years from now in terms of the traditional approaches to progress of the past and the new concepts of progress of the present.

The proposed charter amendment is not without merit and it is conceived with laudable intentions but it is too drastic, too uncertain, and ought to be defeated in the May 1 election.

'Inflation Gardens' The Growing Thing

NEW YORK — It was bound to happen, sooner or later. In today's mail there were five little packets of seeds — plus detailed instructions on how to beat the galloping cost of staying alive by planting my very own "I-Garden."

The "I" is for (what else?) "inflation." And since the same delivery also dropped off those mysterious computerized communications from the telephone, fuel and water folks, the coincidence was fortuitous.

Because, the way things are going down there at the supermarket, it's time to cut a few corners. If only to keep my Princess extension from going dead.

And the fact that the only thing I have ever planted was a pink petunia in a pot (and I died) is irrelevant and B.B.B. (before beef bankruptcy). Desperate times require desperate measures and, besides, what's so complicated about gardening?

Didn't 18 million other city slickers pull it off during World War II? That, remember, was when food was not only scarce, it was rationed — and "V-for-Victory" gardens sprang up in backyards all over the country.

There is a difference, of course. In those days the motivation was patriotism. Now it's the poverty. Never mind. With gold-leaf lettuce turning every salad into an expensive indulgence, who's proud?

My "spring garden" seed packets have a fascinating rattle and full-color pictures of plump carrots, radishes, cucumbers, squash and (whoopie!) lettuce.

They are a gift from a complete stranger, William D. Johnson, president of the Colorado Federal Savings & Loan Association. And if my harvest is half as glorious as his pictures, I may even invite him to lunch.

Mr. Johnson puts his "I-Garden" kits together under the guidance of the Denver Botanic Gardens as a public service in these perilous times. They sell (at cost) for $1 each. (For another buck you can get a "canning garden" — golden midget corn, winter onions, green bush beans, turnips and beets.)

Along with the kit comes a handy-dandy home gardener's guide. And, right off, there's a warning to us beginners not to go crazy on the green-thumb bit and "plow up your whole backyard."

That won't be difficult, since my town house doesn't have a backyard. But wait till you get an eyeful of my north forty in the front, come June or July. Let the neighbors fuss over their prize roses, my carrot tops will "brighten any plain corner with showy foliage." The Denver Botanic Gardens guarantee it.

If this works out, it will make a big dent in what the Agriculture Department tells me is the 15.7% of my disposable income that goes for food. I might even save enough on my cucumbers and radishes to surprise Old Dad with a steak.

So now, if you will excuse me, I must get on with the spring planting. And the worrying about drought... and locusts... and beetle damage. It's going to be a busy summer.

Roads At Indian Cave

We'll bet that not many people in eastern Nebraska have visited Indian Cave State Park, a Missouri River vista located near Barada on the Richardson-Nemaha County line. In fact, we doubt that many are even consciously aware of its existence or of the loveliness of the spot.

It's a cinch the park will become more popular with outdoor enthusiasts once it is more fully developed by the State Game and Parks Commission. Those proposed plans for development, however, are now at issue among groups with differing philosophies of park land use.

The park is now in rather a raw state, even though the remnants of human activity dating back to pioneer days are clearly evident. The area is criss-crossed by dirt roads — some old, some new — leading to scenic overlooks, down to the river and to picnic and camping sites.

The game and parks commission wants to pave some of those roads for the convenience and comfort of auto sightseers, including a road which would extend into the south end of the park, farthest from the entrance, to the cave after which the park is named. And that road, specifically, is the biggest bone of contention.

We agree with the commission that auto sightseeing is likely to be the largest single use of the park. Thus the development and paving of some of the roads in the park for motor use is necessary. The park should be developed to encourage maximum useage. But we think that people who use the outdoors in different ways can live together, so to speak, with that in mind.

There is at Indian Cave, as Wachuska Audubon Society chapter President Walt Bagley says, "an opportunity... for a unique hiking park." There most certainly is that opportunity, and we think the commission should rethink its position before it builds a paved road south through the park to the cave, thereby cutting off the access of game to the river, and disturbing the naturalness of the area and the tranquility of those people who want to get away from the noise and pollution of motorized outdooing.

Roads in the northern portion of the park near the present entrance should be paved to maximize opportunity for auto-related recreational activities. A second entrance, near the south end, could be developed with a parking lot and a foot path to the cave. The interior of the southern portion of the park could thus remain unmolested by auto traffic. That would appear to be the most sensible approach to developing Indian Cave State Park.

Freshman Solons Not Content

"This idea of being seen but not heard is a thing of the past," says a freshman congressman, Edward Mezvinsky of Iowa, who heads the Freshman Democratic Caucus.

The group, numbering 31 House Democrats, is out to break the unwritten congressional rule which encourages first-term silence.

This week caucus members will speak out as a group on what they think is wrong with Congress and most of their fire will be aimed at what they consider the surrender of congressional prerogatives to President Nixon in such areas as the budget fight, the impoundment of funds and the executive privilege issue.

"There is a whole new concept of what new members should be doing and we don't think we should wait around for two or maybe four years to speak out," Mezvinsky feels. "We're fresh out of the grass roots, which is all the more reason we should speak out."

This is not the first young turk movement and it won't be the last. It is not any less welcome than those of the past and hopefully it won't be as futile as most young turk movements have been.

There really is room for some spirited talk and leadership in Congress, which has been cowed by the President. And we would agree that those "fresh out of the grass roots" should have just as much to say as those senior members caught up in the intramural political games of getting ahead in the system.

It will be interesting, if not pertinent, however, to hear what the Freshman Caucus of 1973 — those members who survive re-election fights, that is — has to say in future years regarding young turks of that coming age. Will they concede to the new breed the sagacity they now claim for themselves?

The New Relationship

MOSCOW — An authoritative Soviet figure was saying that he was optimistic about the international scene. Why? "The Soviet and American people have shown that common sense is not foreign to them. A lot has been done to improve relations. Now the atmosphere is right for

He stopped the interpreter, searched for the right phrase. It was, "... Big steps."

An optimistic tone runs through conversations on world affairs here these days. And there is a very heavy emphasis on the American relationship — almost a preoccupation with it. The Soviets evidently find much satisfaction in Mr. Nixon's new era of negotiation, with its implications of joint superpower responsibility and equality.

Americans tend to assume that improved relations with the Soviet Union must result from a change on its part, to a more amenable foreign policy. The Russians argue with some conviction that the truth is the other way: It is the Americans who have changed.

Vietnam is frequently mentioned. Russians contrast their own restraint there over the years with the violent course of American policy. They speak of the American withdrawal as a crucial step toward better Soviet-American relations. One foreign affairs expert, sounding a little as if he were whistling in the dark, said he was sure the President would have common sense enough not to resume bombing or otherwise become reinvolved, "because that would run everything."

But there is refreshingly little name-calling in talk about the United States. The old abusive rhetoric is pretty well faded, giving way not to euphoria or to a pretense that United States and Soviet objectives are the same but to a mood of self-interest — which is to say enlightened — realism.

I found discussion of the nuclear weapons race particularly interesting. I heard the subject of strategic arms limitation discussed by a number of Soviet intellectuals, some only generally aware of the problems and some professionally interested. The concerns they expressed, the dangers and opportunities they saw, were realistic ones — and not all that different from the views to be heard among equivalent Americans.

There was sophisticated awareness of the siren lure of arms technology — the political difficulty of saying "no" to ingenious new ideas for improved weaponry. One person put it, "We cannot allow the technical sweetness of some solution to impose not only the economic burden of a destabilized arms situation but the real danger."

The problem at the heart of the second round of strategic arms talks, controlling not only the quantity but the quality of offensive weapons, was discussed in dispassionate terms. Two Russians, in separate conversations, suggested that on-site inspection was really the only way to verify limits on qualitative improvement. They said U.S.-Soviet relations had not reached the level of trust required to permit such mutual inspection, which the Russians have always opposed, but might some day.

It was possible to discuss in general terms ideas for trading off areas of current weapons superiority, the United States in MIRVs and the U.S.S.R. in huge missiles, to limit further improvement or even roll back numbers. One person described as "sensible" the idea of an overall limitation on Soviet and American deliverable nuclear destructiveness, however the warheads were delivered.

None of this suggests that it will be easy to reach agreements in SALT Two. There are undoubtedly differences between Soviet intellectuals studying arms control and military leaders as great as between

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would having cats around cause sinus trouble? I have had cats all my life, and am now 66, and sinus has just developed. I will feel very bad if I have to get rid of the cats. — C.J.

It is possible to develop allergies later in life, and it is possible to be allergic to animal danders (skin particles or hair from animals).

And allergy can be a major factor in sinus trouble.

But none of that automatically means you have to get rid of your cats because you have sinus trouble. I would suggest that you have some tests to find out whether you are allergic to cats—or something else.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 37 years old, 5 feet 5, and weigh 135, which my own doctor admits doesn't make me look heavy or overweight. I recently had a three-hour sugar-tolerance test which showed 191 at one hour, 160 at two hours and 130 at three hours, indicating diabetes. However my doctor won't start me on medication, which doesn't make sense to me, as my sugar was also high last year. His only advice is to lose 25 pounds. Do you think this wise, or should I consult another doctor?—N.I.

Doubtless you can shop around and find somebody who will put you on diabetes medication instead of telling you what you ought to do — lose some poundage. But I hope you won't.

Your sugar tolerance test is, as you realize, indicative of diabetes. The question, however, is whether the diabetes is mild enough, at this stage, to be controlled by proper diet. It's better to control it, if possible, without medication. At 37, you have a good many years ahead of you, and if you can keep the diabetes under control by diet instead of medication for some of those years, you're going to be a lot better off.

Once you've lost the 25 pounds that your doctor wants you to shed, it can be determined whether you do or don't need medication now.

Your present doctor knows what he is doing. Follow his advice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Whenever I drink milk I get quite ill (headache and nausea). What other foods should I eat instead, to get the necessary amount of calcium?—M.B.

Goat's milk is one answer; soy bean milk is another. But there is considerable calcium in most vegetables (emphasis on green, leafy vegetables) and in cereals. Likewise you may be able to tolerate some milk in other forms — milk used in baked goods or other dishes, in cheese, perhaps in ice cream. The person who cannot tolerate milk often can manage some if the amount is kept small.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can plucking the eyebrows be harmful? — R.O.

Ordinarily not—but swabbing with alcohol before and after would be a precaution against infection starting at one of the roots.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can yogurt harm the stomach or intestine? I eat it every day, but a friend said so.—Mrs. M.B.

No, yogurt won't hurt you. The criticism of yogurt apparently is based on some experiments in which rats were fed a diet exclusively of yogurt, and it led to eye damage.

But it wasn't the yogurt that did it; it was lack of the other kinds of food that they also needed for health. Whether rat or people, a diet limited to any single foodstuff can be expected to do damage.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My ears broke with a bad earache when I was little. I can hear okay now, except when people talk to me, I can't separate the words. Why would this be?—G.M.R.

This is very common in folks who are hard of hearing, and the reason is that ear sensitivity applies to many different sound frequencies — that is, high notes, low notes and in between. It is quite common for ears to lose sensitivity in hearing high notes, while you still hear the lower notes quite well.

That is why you can hear a person's voice but can't make out the words. You are hearing part of the sound. Hearing aids can compensate for this to some degree.

Note to Mrs. R.M.B.: The technical name of "the Lou Gehrig disease" is amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

No-Fault Bill

Lincoln, Neb. The bill on licensing insurance consultants points up the impotency of the Legislature to act on behalf of the people and its subservience to powerful interests. Not one insurance consultant has been identified or one person who has used such an insurance consultant. For a century, insurance agents had no screening for competence and even today half the agents walking around have not taken one test.

The poor and the weak are trampled on because they offer no opposition. If they could assert themselves, they would not be so vulnerable. It is almost a character of human nature to grind the weak into the dust. Astronomical salaries are being paid and proposed for the mighty, and the weak stand still in their enslavement of poverty. Our state officers and judiciary are paid as much or more than the federal who have a hundred times more responsibility.

If the department of insurance were to really try to get the no-fault bill passed and the Legislature really were concerned about the people instead of the special power blocs, then it would save the people of this state $30 million a year. If the department of insurance took on the informative role that the Pennsylvania insurance department took on, then the taxpayers would be saved $100 million a year.

This just scratches the surface on what the people could be saved with good government. It runs into the billions. It will never happen, though, until the present system of lobbying is changed. It will never happen as long as the people retain their enslavement to power. This is fortified by the fact that the few poor and ignorant whom they do get into office betray them through foolishness.

CONCERNED

No Recognition

Lincoln, Neb. As the people of Lincoln may have observed, the flags at the governor's mansion and the State Capitol were lowered on April 3 in honor of CWO Larry Zich, who has been missing in action in Vietnam since April 3, 1972.

I had written to Mayor Leahy of Omaha mentioning that although Omaha was observing "Gustav Mehler Day" April 3, which was very much deserved by its recipient, I hoped they would not forget Larry Zich and the others missing in Southeast Asia. I sent a copy of this letter to Mayor Schwartzkopf asking his help in recognizing Mr. Zich on April 3 which, incidentally, was also his 25th birthday.

Mayor Schwartzkopf apparently feels that the word "recognition" is synonymous with the words "celebration" and "demonstration." He refused to help, stating: "I personally do not believe we can aid the situation with this type of a demonstration. If Larry Zich is found and returns to Lincoln, I will be among the first to join in the celebration of his homecoming."

It is encouraging to know that although the city of Lincoln has chosen to ignore the men missing in Southeast Asia, the state of Nebraska will not let them be forgotten.

PEGGY CROPSEY

Where It Goes

Seward, Neb. Boycotting housewives need to be told the farmer gets four cents out of that loaf of bread she buys and cereal companies can blow up a one-dollar bushel of corn so it brings them a return of $24. A 1971 study by "Super-marketing Magazine" shows how the average consumer spends $100 at the grocery store:

Food Products
Bakery goods.....$ 4.54
Dairy products.....4.43
Frozen foods.....4.91
Meat.....18.94
Poultry.....2.52
Seafood.....10.14
Fresh produce.....18.45
Dry groceries.....48.40

Some Americans remain skeptical that the Soviet leadership really accepts it militarily; they suspect a continued desire for preponderance in arms. The Russians, for their part, seem apprehensive of being dealt with condescendingly in the other large area opened up by the new relationship: economics and trade. But that is a complex social and political problem that requires separate treatment.

AGNES VICKERS

Alice Cooper

Aurora, Neb. I would like to voice my opinion of the placing of a news (?) article about Alice Cooper on the front page of The Star (Fri., Apr. 13).

If someone who has these opinions about sex and life in general is worthy of front-page coverage, in The Star's opinion, then I do feel bad about the paper's moral standards and its impact on our morally decaying society.

Have we come to the point where "Good news is no news, and bad news is all news"? I feel America is overdue for a spiritual reawakening.

'Infilling Of Holy Ghost' Rehabilitates Youthful Addicts

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
 Martell — "The government has nothing to offer these kids," says the Rev. David Kuhtenia. "Methadone, synthetic drugs, more social activities, nothing helps except a personal experience with God."
 "And that's an infilling of the Holy Ghost."

"We anticipated the city centers opening up faster," he said of the referral situation. "Now they're beginning to jell." When new centers open soon in New York City and Detroit, he added, "our enrollment will increase by leaps and bounds."

Those are the words the United Pentecostal youth minister uses to describe his church's method of rehabilitating youthful drug addicts.

18 At A Time
 When the center opened two years ago, an enrollment of 50 was projected. The problem has not been a lack of need for what the center offers, Kuhtenia says. Nor has it been a lack of success with the addicts who have stayed here voluntarily, as many as 18 at a time, for spiritual and oc-

Recent inquiries have been "tremendous," he observed. One trainee is on his way from Washington, and four or five others are expected soon.

Missile Site
 Funded by contributions, the center was established on a 17-acre Nike-Hercules anti-aircraft missile site in 1971. The site was chosen for its central location and its barracks, which were ideally suited for conversion into living and teaching quarters.

The Rev. Kenneth F. Haney — president of the church's youth arm, the Pentecostal Conquerors — said at that time that a new emphasis on drug rehabilitation was necessary because "some of our city churches were becoming drug rehabilitation centers, with pastors and laymen caught up in helping a flood of young people."

The load was becoming increasingly heavy for Kuhtenia,

whose previous position in Connecticut included pastoral responsibilities as well as service as youth director for New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and part of Delaware. More and more, preaching was becoming a "burden," and he was anxious to devote himself fulltime to youth work.

When the Youth Redemption Training Center's first director, the Rev. Albert Dillon, retired to join a congregation in Oregon, Kuhtenia came to Nebraska and accepted the directorship of the center.

Everyone Helps
 Mrs. Kuhtenia is serving as cook until a permanent one can be found. Mr. and Mrs. Steve Craig are recent staff arrivals. He teaches shop classes; she handles the newsletter and mailings. Printing instructor David Kramer is planning to leave soon to evangelize for the church.

The entire staff lives on the grounds in order to provide as much personal counseling contact with the trainees as possible. A 7 a.m.-to-10:30 p.m. regimen combines chores, Bible study and devotion with occupational training in the wood shop or print shop. Weekends are devoted to recreation and maintenance work; evenings are scheduled for recreational activities.

A public church service is held on the grounds Wednesday nights at 7:30, and the trainees go into Lincoln every Sunday for services with a local congregation.

'Religions Teaching'
 "Basically, everything is geared here to a religious teaching," Kuhtenia said. "That's what makes the difference in the program — a personal experience with Jesus Christ."

The trainees are prepared for the center while undergoing withdrawal at city centers. Kuhtenia said, and are told that they will be expected of them.

"They wouldn't even come here unless they're willing to have an open mind," he explained. "Then we show them how it works. We put something clean and good in their lives."

"If you saw the before and after of these fellows, you'd be amazed," he added. "With some it's quick, and with others it takes awhile. It all depends on their attitude in receiving the Lord."

High Success Rate
 Kuhtenia claims a high success rate, noting that many former trainees keep in constant touch once they are out.

All are released to the supervision of a Pentecostal pastor. Some former printing students are making a living with their trade. Others are serving their local congregations in one way or another.

Two, in particular, are now attending Pentecostal seminaries. "We're hoping to keep these fellows interested in staying with youth redemption work," he said.

The youth minister declined to apply a figure to the center's success rate. "We're not 100% and never claimed to be," he says. "If they drop out, they generally drop out for good and go back to their old habits."

"The key is desire," he emphasized. "If they're willing to make a change, we're willing to help. Otherwise, you can't help somebody."

Consequently, "the gates are always open," Kuhtenia said.

FHA Panel Discusses Changing Role Of Sexes

"Do you think single people should adopt children?"
 "Will the Equal Rights Amendment take away certain rights that women have?"
 "Do you think that high school cheerleaders are just sex symbols?"

Future Homemakers of America (FHA) from across Nebraska posed these and many other questions to five panel members during the opening session of the FHA State Leadership Conference here Monday.

The topic of the panel discussion was the changing roles of men and women in contemporary society. Dr. Virginia Trotter, vice chancellor of academic affairs at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was panel moderator. Other panelists were Don Patty, Waverly High School teacher; Rosemarie Patty, graduate student in psychology; Jean O'Hara, Lincoln homemaker; Ellie Shore, Lincoln Chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW); and Cheri Johnson, Fremont high school student.

Dr. Trotter told the FHA group that if the roles of women are to be altered, three basic fundamentals must be present: (1) a woman must further her education as best she can, (2) both women and men must remove the prejudice they have against the capabilities of women, and (3) women must improve their self-image.

Ellie Shore challenged the FHA group to define their roles as future homemakers. "Is a homemaker someone who works full time in the home? Part time in the home and full time elsewhere? Does a homemaker have to be a woman?"

The high school FHA'ers were especially intrigued by panel participants Don and Rosemarie Patty of Waverly. Both are involved in professional situations, and they explained to the group how they have arrived at a "reasonable" family arrangement in their marriage.

Don does most of the cleaning in the Patty household, while Rosemarie does much of the errand running, gardening and plumbing. The Patty's agreed that their household is built on efficiency and that they consider their marriage a partnership.

Don Patty said his biggest concern is that equality for women should also mean equality for men. Each should have the freedom to do whatever he or she prefers.

Panel members emphasized the freedom element in what they termed the "human liberation" movement. Trotter commented that today "men are more locked into what they can and can't do than women are." Trotter also said that women should not be made to feel guilty if they choose to stay in the home and raise their children. But neither, she added, should they feel ashamed if they want to work outside the home while their children are very young.

Supporting the role of the homemaker, Jean O'Hara, Lincoln homemaker and president of the Lincoln Women's Political Caucus, said there is a need to upgrade the role of the Homemaker. She pointed out that the services provided by a homemaker in the home would cost approximately $275 per week in the paid work force.

Future Homemakers Honor 3 Home Economics Educators

Three home economics educators were named honorary members of the State Association of Future Homemakers of America (FHA) during an awards ceremony here Monday evening. The presentations were made as a part of the annual State FHA Leadership Conference.

Recognized for outstanding support and service to the state association and advancement of home economics in Nebraska were Dr. Virginia Trotter, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; Leora Horning, associate professor of education and family resources at UNL; and Susan Huwaldt, home economics teacher from Plainview.

Before assuming the responsibility of vice chancellor for academic affairs, Dr. Trotter served as dean of the College of Home Economics, and held faculty positions at the University of Utah and the University of Vermont.

Dr. Trotter is a past president of the Nebraska Home Economics Association and has worked directly with FHA as a member of the State Advisory Board.

Leora Horning joined the University staff in 1958. Her position in the Department of Education and Family Resources includes development of a home economics teaching methods course, field work with beginning teachers and direction of graduate student research problems.

Ms. Huwaldt is an FHA chapter advisor at Plainview. She has taught home economics at both Tilden and Plainview and is a Kearney State College graduate.

She is a past State FHA Advisory Board member and has been advisor to a state officer. She has served as a district FHA advisor and was previously selected as a district honorary member.

All three scholarship winners plan to attend the University of Nebraska in the fall.

member of the State Advisory Board.

Before joining the NU staff, Ms. Horning worked with Dow Chemical Co. at Midland, Michigan and was on the staff at Michigan State University, the institution from which she received her B.S. and M.A.

Currently she is president of the Nebraska Home Economics Association and a member of the State FHA Advisory Board.

Ms. Huwaldt is an FHA chapter advisor at Plainview. She has taught home economics at both Tilden and Plainview and is a Kearney State College graduate.

She is a past State FHA Advisory Board member and has been advisor to a state officer. She has served as a district FHA advisor and was previously selected as a district honorary member.

All three scholarship winners plan to attend the University of Nebraska in the fall.

CNTC Graduation Services Canceled

Hastings (AP) — The administration at Central Nebraska Technical College in Hastings has decided to cancel the traditional graduation ceremony for 1973, which had been scheduled for May 27. According to an announcement made by Dr. Chester Gausman, president of CNTC, a survey of students who have completed programs this year shows that less than 20% would return for graduation.

Prof. Kimbrough Cited By Writers

North Platte (AP) — North Platte College Prof. Dick Kimbrough has been awarded the Friends of American Writers prize for distinguished recognition in the field of juvenile literature. The award is for the recently published book, Cross Country Courage. It depicts the difficulties encountered by a black youth attempting to become a part of a hitherto all white cross-country team. Kimbrough is a professor of western civilization at North Platte College.

Fairmont Foods Sales Up 6.5%

Omaha (AP) — Net sales for Fairmont Foods Co., for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1973, rose 6.5% over the previous fiscal, to $376,402,662, the firm reported Monday. Net earnings for fiscal 1973 were $5,458,687 or $1.20 per common share, compared with last year's 93¢ per share on net earnings of $4,352,624 before an extraordinary charge net of income taxes of $5,459,000. This represents an increase of 25.4% on net earnings from operations.

Kimball Youngsters Win Meet

Kimball (AP) — A team of youngsters from Kimball won the state marksmanship contest here sponsored by the Nebraska Jaycees. LaVista was second and Hastings third. All of the competitors are required to complete a course in gun safety extending over 13 weeks. Total high points were scored by Lorri Muhr of Kimball. Debbie Straw of LaVista was second and John Paulsen of Alliance was third.

Scheffer Captures Ugly Professor Title

Wayne — The Ugly Professor title at Wayne State College belongs to James Scheffer this year. It is an honor bestowed on some member of the science and mathematics faculty by students in those classes. Scheffer joined the Wayne faculty in 1969 as an assistant professor of mathematics. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Kansas State University. David Rehbein of North Bend and a freshman at WSC, was named outstanding freshman in mathematics after scoring highest in a test.

Barb Criswell New FHA Chief

Barb Criswell of Chappell was named Nebraska state president of the Future Homemakers of America (FHA) at the group's annual Leadership Conference Monday in Lincoln.

Other newly elected officers include: first vice president, Nancy Ritta, Marquette; second vice president, Debra Doberkow, West Point; secretary, Jane Mortensen, Curtis; treasurer, Jennette Micek, Ord; historian, Joanna Rhodes, Bridgeport; parliamentarian, Mary Nielson, Bloomfield, song leader, Kim Myer, Arnold; recreation chairperson, Lori Schlichtemeier, Nehawka; publicity chairperson, Deb Schwaninger, Firth; and encounter growth chairperson, Melinda Johnson, Mead.

Meanwhile, three FHA members were each awarded $250 educational scholarships. Scholarship recipients are: Kathleen Bohuslavsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bohuslavsky of Dwight; Rane Knesche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Knesche, Wayne; and Karen Policky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Policky of Dwight.

The scholarships are awarded annually by the Nebraska FHA Association to outstanding FHA members who plan to enroll in a four-year accredited college or university in Nebraska and major in vocational home economics education.

All three scholarship winners plan to attend the University of Nebraska in the fall.

Sanding Crews Reported Slow

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—City police said Monday local and state highway maintenance departments responded slowly to calls for sanding of slippery freeway routes in Omaha early this morning. Both highway departments denied the charge.

Traffic Capt. William Pattavina said sanding crews did not get to work on the Interstate and Kennedy Freeways until three hours after they were called.

As a result, Pattavina said, the number of traffic accidents on the freeways totaled 22 between 4 a.m. and 8 a.m.—including two personal injury accidents. On a normal morning, there are two or three freeway accidents, he said.

According to Pattavina, police started calling in about 3:30 a.m., requesting sand for slippery areas caused by an unexpected snowfall.

Pattavina said "The state trucks showed up about 8 a.m. and the city about 7:30 a.m."

However, E.W. Tupper, district engineer for the State Department of Roads, said his crew was not called by police until 6 a.m., and that the first crew went out by 6:15 a.m.

Mike Vazzano, city Public Works Department foreman, said the first call to the maintenance dispatcher was at 5:55 a.m., with three units working by 6:30 a.m.

Pattavina said police had to block off the southbound lanes of Kennedy Freeway for a period because there was no sand or salt to reduce slippery conditions.

Omaha Man Is Jailed For Kidnapping, Rape

Hampton, Iowa (AP) — An Omaha, Neb., man was held Monday in the Franklin County jail in lieu of $40,000 bond on charges of kidnapping, robbery, rape and carrying a concealed weapon in connection with weekend incidents involving three Burlington women.

Charges were filed against Steven E. Portis, 26, formerly of Mason City. He is charged with three counts of kidnapping, three counts of robbery with aggravation, one count of carrying a concealed weapon and one count of rape.

He was arrested Sunday and arraigned in Justice Court in Hampton in connection with the alleged armed kidnapping, robbery and rape of three young Burlington women late Saturday and early Sunday.

Mason City Deputy Police Chief Duane Jewell said the women were hitchhiking on Interstate 80 near Des Moines about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, returning to Burlington from a rock festival in Ames.

Jewell said Portis picked them up, robbed them, and headed toward Mason City. Portis then forced two of the women into the trunk of the car and raped the third, then left all three in Mason City, said Jewell.

Franklin County Sheriff Duane Payne said the girls called police, who found Portis at his brother's house in Franklin County, where he was arrested.

Payne said no date has been set for preliminary hearing, but it would be within the next few weeks.

Chadron Man Accident Victim

CHADRON, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's 1973 highway death toll climbed to 106 Monday with a report of a weekend truck accident that claimed the life of a Chadron man.

The victim was Henry Stetson, 83. He died Saturday of injuries sustained in a pickup truck accident Friday near Chadron.

His truck rolled into a canyon as he apparently tried to swerve to miss farm equipment in the road, it was reported.

Exon Says His Budget Would Allow Tax Cuts

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Monday tossed a surprised Legislature a "heads-I-win-tails-you-lose" proposition urging them to adopt his spending recommendations for fiscal 1974 and thus enable him to lower the state income tax for 1974 by one-third.

The sales tax also could be chopped by one-fifth, Exon told the Legislature in a special address, if it agrees to put $20 million in general revenue sharing into the general fund.

Exon said his $563 million budget would allow the State Board of Equalization, which he chairs, to lower the income tax next November from 15% to 10% and the state sales tax from 2 1/2% to 2% for calendar 1974.

Up To Legislature
Exon, who faces re-election in 1974, along with half of the legislators thus placed the issue of spending and taxation on the Legislature's shoulders.

The tax cuts will be possible, Exon explained, because the state is experiencing "substantial unanticipated" growth in revenue from sales and income taxes.

"The increased receipts are in part due to the present relatively healthy state of the economy in Nebraska," Exon said. "I emphasize that these figures and recommendations are based upon present trends that we hope will continue. They are predicated on the assumption of a good agricultural season and prices for our farmers and continued expansion of our industrial and tourism growth."

Exon said the latest Department of Revenue statistics indicate that the state will have a net increase in collections of $8 million over estimates for the current fiscal year. In 1974 further $9 million increase would be generated under the current tax rates, he said.

The proposed tax cuts will only be possible, Exon said, if the Legislature does not "launch extensive new state obligations."

Can't 'Satisfy All'
"We would also have to meet legitimate needs but refrain from trying to satisfy all by giving in to ever increasing spending demands," Exon said.

Exon's speech, which preceded floor debate on the fiscal 1974 state operational budget, took particular aim at the Appropriations Committee's tentative additions to Exon's budget totaling almost $17 million, some of which would use revenue sharing funds.

Exon reaffirmed his opposition to using revenue sharing money solely for capital construction and program funding.

"I suggest... that you now view yourselves as members of the biggest business in the state."

'Dividend'
"Do you now further enlarge the scope of the business and commit all or most of the increased revenues to additional spending programs? Or... do you conserve these funds as much as realistic and prudent and thereby allow the 'stockholders,' in this case the people of the state, a dividend in the form of a substantial tax reduction?... I recommend the latter course..."

"The point that I wish to make here is that the majority of general revenue sharing funds... should be employed to reduce taxes either through aid to education and accompanying real estate relief by some other means."

Later in an interview Exon denied that excess revenue over past months could have allowed a tax cut this year. In setting the 1972 and 1973 rates, the Board of Equalization had relied on a 7 1/2% growth in sales tax revenue; however, 1972 figures indicate that actual growth was 12%.

Exon said the upward trend in revenue did not appear until the latter part of last year. To be responsible, Exon said, the board can only project revenue as it comes in.

Cash flow is a critical matter in enabling a tax cut in 1974, Exon said.

For instance, the additional $3 or $4 million generated by an increase in the corporate income tax authorized by the 1972 Legislature will be realized in fiscal 1974.

Teachers' Benefit Bill Advanced

A confused Legislature Monday gave first round floor approval to a bill increasing benefits for retired teachers, even though the measure may not come up for final reading until next January.

Advanced 38-0 from general file was Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis' LB445, which would increase the state service annuity on the retirement plan.

Lewis admitted the bill won't come up for final reading until next year if the Legislature goes through with its plan to adjourn sine die this week, but said he wanted the measure advanced as far as possible by adjournment.

Budget Bill Hikes Tax Spending

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The operational budget bill rushed across the floor of the Legislature Monday provides a 9% increase in state tax-supported expenditures for fiscal 1973-74.

Originally geared to fit current state sales and income tax rates, the budget document would now permit a reduction in tax rates as a result of growth in revenue from present levies.

Gov. J. James Exon presented his recommendations to the Legislature Jan. 19, and they have since been submitted to weeks of hearings by the Appropriations Committee.

The committee drafted its own proposals, increasing the governor's general fund recommendations by less than 2%.

The Exon budget is a $563.4 million package, which includes $227.8 million in general fund spending. The current general fund level is $209.7 million.

(Exon has since recommended a series of amendments to his original budget bill, but they were not considered by the Legislature Monday when it decided to advance his bill in its original form.)

Salary Hikes
Incorporated into the budget are average salary hikes of 5.9% for state employees covered by a new job classification and pay plan.

The Appropriations Committee adopted the plan without change.

Among major changes in the bill which would have been proposed by the committee:

—a general fund boost of $1.2 million for the University of Nebraska.

—a general fund hike of $1.2 million for the state colleges.

—a reduction in state matching support for construction of municipal waste treatment facilities from 12 1/2% to 5%.

—an increase of $361,780 in funding for community programs for the mentally retarded.

'Direction'
In answer to questions Monday from Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said "the basic difference" in the two budget packages is "not in dollars, but in direction."

Marvel said any deficiencies in the governor's budget could be met by the 1974 Legislature when it convened next January.

But, if the governor's budget was adequate, Chambers wondered: "Why did the committee offer amendments?"

The committee had prepared more than 200 amendments to the governor's bill.

Here is the vote on Sen. Terry Carpenter's motion to accept the governor's budget bill, hold other legislation for the 1974 session and adjourn this week:

For: Barnhart, Carpenter, Dickinson, Doss, Eike, Fellman, Kennedy, Kevs, Kime, Kremer, F. Lewis, R. Lewis, Luedtke, Mahoney, Marvel, Moylan, Murphy, Nore, Rasmussen, Savage, Simpson, Skarda, Snyder, Stahmer, Stromer, Whitely, Wiltsie.
Against: Anderson, Burbach, C. Carsten, F. Carsten, Cavanaugh, Chambers, DeCamp, Fowler, Goodrich, Johnson, Kelly, Marsh, Marsh, Proudt, Schmidt, Slys, Warner.
Absent: Clark, Hasebroock, Richen, Oiler, Shull, Waldron.
Voting against advancement of the bill in the 37th vote which moved it over its first floor test were Anderson, Chambers, Fowler, Goodrich, Marsh, Proudt, Schmidt and Warner.

Lincoln URW Local 286 Involved In Pact Parley

The United Rubber Workers (URW) Local 286, AFL-CIO, is one of 15 local unions across the country with more than 23,000 members negotiating renewal of a three-year master contract with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

The contract expires at midnight Friday.

If the Cincinnati, Ohio, talks produce no settlement by 12:01 a.m. Saturday, URW International President Peter Bommarito has declared the union will strike Goodyear plants world-wide.

Lincoln's belting and hose plant is one of 71 domestic plants that would be affected by a strike.

Paul Ess, personnel manager of the Lincoln plant, and Lloyd

T. Worley, URW Local 286 president, are attending the negotiations.

Union vice president Bob Wallen of Lincoln said Monday he hopes there will be no strike. Details of wage and fringe benefit increases being negotiated for have been embargoed from public release, he said, until a settlement is made or a strike is called.

If the Lincoln plant is struck, it would affect about 1,880 employees, according to Gordon Hein, acting personnel manager. In 1972, payroll at the plant was $17.6 million.

Goodyear was chosen the target company among from the "Big Four" rubber firms — Firestone, Uniroyal and B. F.

Goodrich are the others — whose current contracts expire Friday night.

The master contract for all four companies covers 70,000 workers.

According to a news release from the international URW, Bommarito "has been assured by rubber workers throughout the world that the URW will have international support if a strike is called against Goodyear."

Bommarito also announced in the release that "A national consumer boycott of Goodyear products will be put into effect if the URW strikes." He said "such a boycott will have the full support and sanction of the AFL-CIO."

Farmers Way Behind In Work; Looking For Warmer Weather

Nebraska's farmers are way behind in their field work and are looking for warm dry weather.

This was the comment Monday in the weekly crop-weather report of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

"Most farmers were able to get into the field beginning in mid-week, but the weekend rain will again delay field work," the report said.

Field work consisted mostly of harvesting remaining crops, discing, plowing, stalk shredding, fertilizer spreading, and limited seeding, according to the report.

"Winter wheat condition generally is good, but there has been some winter kill in eastern areas, part of which has been or will be replanted to other crops," it was reported.

Other comments:

Marketing of livestock continued to be limited last week because of marketing uncertainties and fluctuating prices.

Feedlots still are in poor shape, but improved considerably during the week and were beginning to dry out before the weekend rains.

Some cattle have been moved to stalk fields and a few have been moved to pastures.

Scours continue to be a problem with young calves. It has been an especially difficult spring for new born stock.

Moisture received throughout Nebraska during the past week included:

National Demo Leader Raps Rep. McCollister

By The Associated Press
Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss has accused Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., of "political hypocrisy" in his votes on legislation to restore the rural water and sewer grant program established under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act.

In a Washington news release, Strauss noted that on March 1, McCollister voted for the legislation. President Nixon vetoed the bill and the House attempted unsuccessfully to override the veto. "On April 10, the Republican congressman switched his position and helped kill the program by sustaining the veto," said Strauss.

"This is political hypocrisy on the part of the Republican," he said. "The first vote, restoring the program, gave hope to thousands of small town and farm families. But refusing to override the veto dashed that hope."

Ration Stamp Return Termed 'Possibility'

Omaha (AP) — Americans may have to return to the days of World War I ration stamps if price freezes and rollbacks are used to control inflation, a government economist said Monday.

Jay N. Woodworth said measures now before Congress could create widespread shortages of consumer goods. Woodworth is deputy to the assistant secretary of the treasury for economic policy.

"If Congress would impose say a 60-day freeze on prices, the manufacturer could figure that after 60 days he would be able to play the ball game by less strict rules. So why not cut back production now and resume when the freeze and rollback period was over?"

Suppliers of raw materials also would be encouraged to cut back production, he said. Even a 60-day freeze period could result in shortages of goods and consumer rationing of the products would be the only way to keep prices from skyrocketing after the control were lifted, Woodworth said.

105 Ft. Omaha Jobs To Move

Washington (AP) — Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said Monday the Pentagon notified his office that 56 military and 49 civilian jobs will be transferred from Ft. Omaha to New Orleans. The jobs are in Naval support activity.

The bulk of the Ft. Omaha jobs however, are being retained in Nebraska, the senator said.

Idaho County Not Surprised By Earthquake

Malad City, Idaho (AP) — At least some Oneida County residents weren't surprised when a moderate earthquake hit the area this weekend. It was expected.

Rancher Bud Waldron of Samaria said his great-grandfather predicted it in 1853. Waldron said a local legend started when his ancestor said spring didn't arrive in the area until "we hear the Samaria Mountains rumbling."

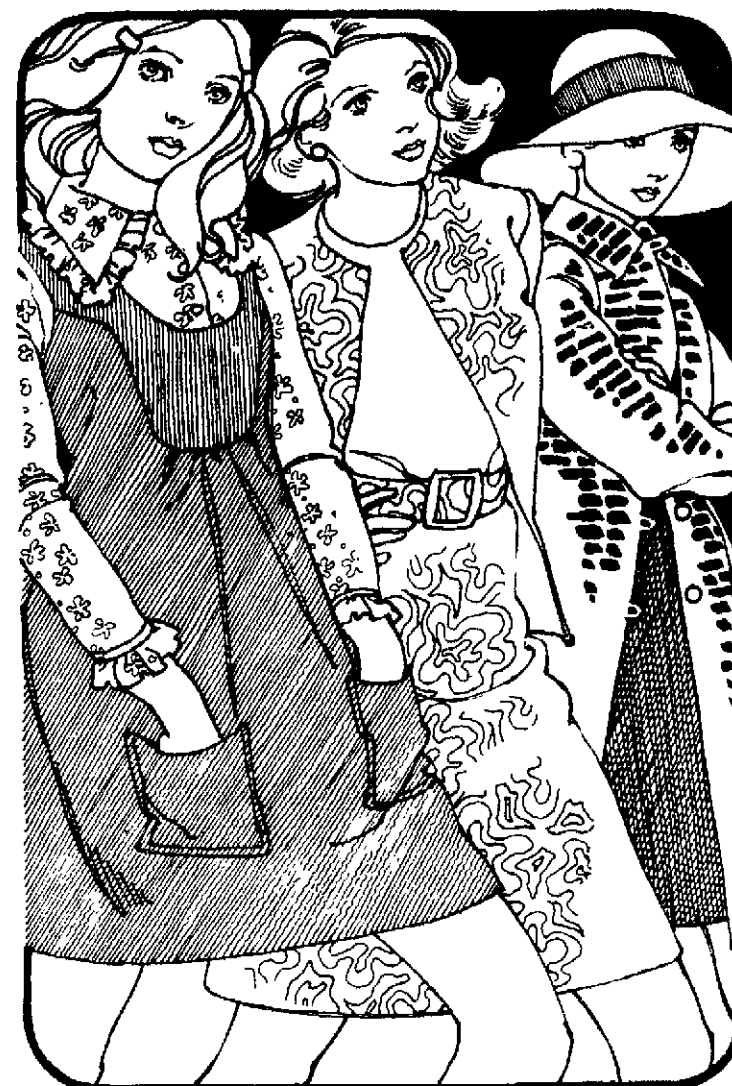

The mountains rumbled when the quake registered 4.7 on the Richter scale Friday night. The tremor rattled windows and dishes, but no reported damage.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR
Forecast For Tuesday

I recently discovered the works of Sherwood Anderson, especially "Winesburg, Ohio." I know this is a landmark in American fiction. Can you tell me something about the horoscope of Anderson? — Tom Reagan, Dallas, Texas. Answer: Sherwood Anderson was an American author who was a close friend of Gertrude Stein and who influenced the work of Ernest Hemingway. Anderson was born under the zodiacal sign of Virgo and had Pluto in Taurus in his Ninth House — these are "signatures" in the horoscope of a writer. He was warm and earthy and his writings changed the structure of the short story in America. He was born Sept. 13, 1876, with the Moon in Cancer in the Eleventh House of his Solar chart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Concern indicated with household costs. Desire is for more comfort, beauty. But budget could represent an obstacle. You can gain co-operation of family member. This is necessary. Taurus and Libra are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You are right to be cautious. One who wants you to rush is not familiar with facts. Take your time. Plan and observe. Accent is on marriage, partnership, public relations. You may not be seeing too clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If you stick to specific project, the odds are that you can succeed. Rewards are not obvious at this time. But you can build for future security. Member of opposite sex is involved. You will be rewarded.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): One who is attracted to talk of faraway place. Key now is to get perspective into focus. Don't be intimidated by circumstantial evidence. Your own creativity is strong enough to serve as reliable indicator.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Blockbuster events could occur which spotlight your originality. You get chance to break from restrictions. You are elevated to higher position. Key now is to be versatile without scattering your forces. Aquarius is in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Dealings with relatives occupy much of your time. Discussions tend to center around home property values, long-range loans and plans. Key now is to be versatile without scattering your forces. Aquarius is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be spending too much in wrong areas. Key now is to consolidate, to be flexible without being weak. Be familiar with liabilities and assets. Open lines of communication. Deal with Sagittarius.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cycle is such that you can be more independent original. You can set your own pace and others will follow your lead. You also can tear down in order to rebuild. There no longer is a need to stick with outmoded concepts, methods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): One who tells stories behind your back will be exposed. Maintain calm, dignity. Sense of humor could be your best weapon. Be analytical. Find reasons why certain events have taken sudden turns.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight is on wish fulfillment. You are likely now to get what you ask for — be sure it is what you really need. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Now is time to invest in your own abilities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take aim toward goal. What you want is available. Be selective. There is no need for you to accept second-rate product or assignment. Maintain self-esteem. Go directly to source. Don't be discouraged by one who has little or no imagination.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with ability to reach more persons, articulate ideas and to reach beyond what appears to be your capacity. Financial standing improves. You are rewarded for accepting responsibility.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have ability to take control of yourself under crisis or pressure conditions. You react well during emergencies. You work best when the stakes are high and the chips are down. You draw many to you who were born under Capricorn. December will be one of your most significant months of 1977.

CRIME AND CORRUPTION

are rampant in the world and, according to the Bible, retribution comes as a consequence. The world is suffering a great "time of trouble." There is much cause for great rejoicing, however, because this dark cloud of trouble has a silver lining. God's new invisible and visible supernatural government will soon be established on earth, and will make it a new worldwide paradise. Crime and corruption will be abolished, and all men of good will can then have everlasting safety, peace, joy and life. For details write The Bible Standard, Chester Springs, Pa. 19425. Bank Charge Cards Become A Lifestyle

Once there were only a few ways of purchasing goods and services without actually using cash. Today plans are thrust at the consumer every day. One of the more popular trends is the use of bank charge cards.

Bank cards are a big business in Nebraska too. The 177 banks that receive cards through First National Bank in Lincoln charged 22 million dollars worth of goods, services and cash advances in the last year. Master Charge volume transacted through the Mid-America Bank Corporation in Omaha last fiscal year was 144 million dollars.

Unlike credit cards of yesteryear, bank cards are designed to serve the consumer, while providing a profit to the bank issuing the card. This margin of profit is totally separate from the profit that may or may not be made by the merchant who actually sold the goods or services. It's the money that goes to the bank which issued the card—in the form of interest charged once the balance goes unpaid for a specified period of time (usually a month.)

The two major bank charge cards in operation today are Master Charge and BankAmericard. Master Charge is a service mark belonging to nearly 5,500 banks that are part of the Interbank Card Association. It was established in 1966. The cardholder from a member bank can make charge purchases from a merchant affiliated with any other bank in the system.

BankAmericard is the name of the charge card franchised to members of National BankAmericard Inc.

There are also a number of smaller independent bank card plans.

National BankAmericard Inc. is owned by about 170 banks. They share decision-making authority within the organization according to sales volume in their geographical area.

More than 1.1 million retail merchants accept Master Charge and BankAmericard. During 1971, these bank charge cards were used to purchase more than $8 billion in goods and services.

In Lincoln, Master Charge is administered through the National Bank of Commerce (NBC). NBC is a member of the Mid-America Bank Corporation, an organization of six affiliate banks headquartered in Omaha. NBC joined the group in June, 1969.

Tyler: Successful

According to Ralph Tyler, manager of the Master Charge division of NBC, the program has been successful. He said that Mid-America Bank Corp. (MABC) "enjoys a good reputation in the market place."

Are NBC and MABC optimistic about the profitability of their link with the Interbank Card Association? "All member banks are encouraged and pleased," Tyler noted.

Bank Americard came to the Lincoln vicinity in February of 1969. The First National Bank of Lincoln, after a study of bank charge cards, found BankAmericard to be best suited for their affiliation. According to First National's BankAmericard manager, Duane F. Schainhorst, the final decision was made on the basis of billing procedures.

BankAmericard returns receipts of purchases and cash advances with monthly statement. Master Charge sends an itemized statement with each monthly bill. The Master Charge statement is a computerized notation of the identity of each firm where the goods or service was purchased.

Tyler says the itemized billing system used by Master Charge, he feels, is "more streamlined" and provides for "lower possibility of error during the transaction."

Both local banks indicated their choices of bank card systems also involved advertising and market support from the national organization. Head offices were cited as being generous in promoting card use and in providing help in administering the programs.

Credit Seekers

A recent survey by the Wharton Business School of the University of Pennsylvania revealed that nearly 75% of the students interviewed held bank charge cards, oil company cards or charge accounts. Another 15% said they wanted credit and believed they could handle it responsibly.

Most economists agree that bank card credit has functioned more as a substitute for other kinds of consumer borrowing than as a vehicle for new types of credit.

Federal Reserve Governor Andrew F. Brimmer notes: "I'm convinced that what the bank credit card system is doing is transferring credit from merchants to banks, merely shuffling it around."

He also says that only a small part of the growth of consumer credit in recent years can be ascribed to bank charge cards. In 1971 about 3% of total consumer credit was attributed to the cards.

Bankers say that, even with volume, they need an 18% finance charge (1½% a month) on bank charge card purchases to make a reasonable profit. Schainhorst says that 45% of BankAmericard customers linked to this operation pay their bills in full at the end of the month. Similar data for Master Charge was unavailable.

Some of the primary advantages listed by the bank charge cards systems, are:

- No need for large amounts of cash on hand
- With bank charge cards used exclusively, the cardholder needs to write only one check a month to cover all his bank charge card purchases.
- Over-spending is inhibited by maximum credit lines, set by the bank issuing the card.

—Monthly statements provide an accurate and up-to-date record of purchases.

—A card holder can purchase sale items and save money without depleting cash reserves on hand —And often, the processing time for a particular transaction may take up to a month. The customer is also allowed a period of time to pay the account before a service charge (interest) is assessed. If the bill is paid in full, the consumer need only pay for goods purchased. It amounts—in some cases—to a free accounting and budgeting service.

Merchants have accepted the plan with little hesitation. To the average merchant, the acceptance of a bank charge card may mean an increased number of customers, the potential market of all cardholders, no collection problems, no billing problems and decreased credit expenses.

'Some people even use their bank charge card as a way to keep their savings account intact'

Bank cards and credit cards adopting the same general method of billing and finance charge assessment are finding widespread American acceptance.

Should the charge card be misplaced, federal legislation limits owner liability for unauthorized use to $50. This is guaranteed, even if the customer fails to notify the bank of the loss or theft

Present System Is Forerunner

Bank Cards May Create A Real Cashless Society

The establishment of major bank interchange systems has led bankers to speculate that bank charge cards are the forerunner of a new payments system that eventually will replace cash and checks, creating a "cashless society."

This concept, known as the electronic transfer of payments, has the ultimate goal of converting the present system into an instant debit and credit procedure, totally automatic and paperless.

Eventually the consumer may have a single charge card with which he will make the major part of his purchases and credit transactions. This will be made possible, the experts forecast, through terminals at every purchase point that will have direct access to centralized computers containing confidential cardholder files.

A basic problem which is triggering the new approaches is the rapidly increasing volume of paper resulting from the present monetary transfer system. More than 21 billion checks had to be processed in 1971. Almost 23 billion were estimated for 1972. By 1975, it's projected that about 35 billion checks will have to be deposited, processed, transferred and presented for payment.

More than 60 million bank charge cards are in the hands of Americans, many of them young people who view the cards as money management tools. Why? With one, the cost-conscious shopper can purchase items at sale price, no matter what the season or how slim the pocket-book at the time.

A charge card can be used to keep a savings account intact—more difficult than ever to build up during an inflationary period—while extending payments on the purchase. Nobody would ever make you "repay" your savings account, while you're paying off the charge card purchase, the money you have in savings continues to draw interest.

And although the interest earned is taxable income, the interest paid on a loan or consumer credit is, of course, a tax deductible item.

While the proportion of the population to whom instalment credit has been extended (50%) has remained fairly constant, the bank charge card may even be serving as a curb on spending. The credit line which each bank sets for the cardholder is generally on the low side—typically $300 to $400—until a record justifying higher limits is established.

One-third of all bank charge card accounts are estimated to be active. During 1971 Master Charge accounts, for example, were used on the average about twice a month nationally on transactions of about $19.50. The total amount outstanding per account was an average of around $240.

Psychologist Teaches What It's Like To Be Parent

NEW YORK (AP) — "I always thought I'd have children when I grew up because that's what people normally do," said David, a round-faced, serious 13-year-old. "Now I'm thinking maybe I won't."

David started rethinking his plans for future parenthood after attending a unique junior high school class on what it's like to be a parent, taught by child psychologist and author Dr. Lee Salk.

Salk, director of the division of pediatric psychology at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, said he believes the class is the first of its kind in the country.

He started it, he said, because he thinks there's a great need for formal education for parenthood, which is now practically nonexistent. "Parenthood is maybe the most important role we have, but we're given the least amount of training for it," Salk said in an interview.

"Many people should not have children because they're not ready to accept the responsibility," he said. They really don't know what they're getting themselves into.

"They're not particularly interested in becoming parents, but they're under a lot of social pressure to do so anyway. If they know in advance, as teen-agers, what it's really like, it may convince them not to have children."

Salk has another reason for teaching a group of eighth graders about parenthood.

"A lot of kids that age feel they're misunderstood by their parents. If I can help them understand how difficult parenthood is, the more sensitive they'll be to their own parents. They'll be able to better communicate with each other."

Children are just naturally curious about why their parents behave the way they do, added the author of "What Every Child

Would Like His Parents to Know."

The 15 Wagner Junior High School students who were hand-picked for the class are so enthusiastic about it they've prompted dozens of other students to ask for admission, says principal Bernice Frankenthal.

"We wish the program could be expanded," she said. "We're delighted with it, and so are the parents."

"One young lady signed her own consent slip for the class because she was afraid her mother wouldn't let her take it. But the mother now says it was the best thing that happened to her daughter."

Every Wednesday afternoon, Salk finds the children sprawled in front of the classroom door, waiting for him to arrive.

They arrange their desks in a horseshoe around the balding, bespectacled doctor, scarcely waiting for the bell to ring before tossing out questions and voicing their opinions on raising children.

The students move fast from topic to topic. During one recent class, they were most concerned about whether children should have to give parents some of the money they earn.

"Half of what I earn babysitting I have to give to my college fund," said one girl in jeans. "I tried to persuade my mother that it's not fair, but she wouldn't listen to me. I try to understand her, but sometimes when I want to buy something, it's hard."

"Parents are put into that position, too," replied Salk. "There might be things they want to have right now, but they have to put money away. The problem in your case is that your parents may be acting correctly and you know it, but deep down you think it's unfair."

Another girl broke in. "If kids work it's their money, and they should be able to spend it the way they want."

"Pretend you're a parent and your child is earning money," Salk said. "Would you really let him do whatever he wanted with it?"

The girl thought for a moment and then, with a half-smile, said, "No, I guess not. I guess I wouldn't let him go and spend it on just anything."

Decisions Not Easy
"It's hard for parents to make decisions like that," Salk said. "See how rough it is? Are you sure you want to be a parent?"

After the class, Salk said, "As we come to a conclusion, I always remind them to remember it when they're parents."

David, who's having doubts about whether he wants to be a parent, says he's now able to talk more easily with his parents and to understand their problems with him and his brother, because of the class.

He says he also likes the class because "most classes in school teach us to be thinking machines. This one is teaching us how to be human beings."

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Unsuccessful Son Blames Dad

By ROBERT PETERSON
QUESTION: — "I'm 54 and incapable of supporting my wife and home. And I blame Dad. He was a successful engineer, but instead of forcing me to go into the same field he let me make my own decision and I was too stupid to know what was best. Because I got good grades in history I took AB and MA degrees in English history. Then I went into teaching but wasn't any good since I was fired from three teaching jobs. Ten years ago I took my small inheritance and bought a bookshop but this barely clears $200 monthly so my wife has to work as a secretary to keep us afloat. Don't you agree parents are to blame when children make wrong career decisions?"

ANSWER: — Parents should encourage and counsel children to pursue certain career objectives, but the final decision should be up to the individual himself. You may blame your father for not insisting you follow an engineering career. But others blame their parents for forcing them into careers they now despise. If your bookshop profits are sagging, try diversifying your line of merchandise. And consider bringing in a live-wire partner with solid retail experience who may be able to hype your volume and profits.

QUESTION: — Why do people keep bugging retirees to keep busy? My husband retired at 65 after four decades with the power company. He just loves to sit and do absolutely nothing. But a week never goes by but a friend calls to insist he serve on some community board, committee, or drive. They say, "Now that you're retired you need something to do, etc." But he doesn't anything to do. What do you say?"

ANSWER: — Maybe you should encourage him to rouse out of his rocker and accept occasional chores. Doing nothing often leads to stagnation, depression and oblivion. Of course, retirement is a time for doing as one wishes. And if your husband genuinely enjoys his leisure and inactivity he should tell callers candidly that he'll let them know when he wants to get involved in good works and community activities.

QUESTION: — "You often talk about old folks who bother their children. But what about children who bother the old folks? We're retired and have a daughter, 41, who lives up the street and comes over with her 6-year-old son. She spends most of the day with us. You'd think she wasn't married with a home of her own. For she writes letters in her old bedroom, makes phone calls, helps us fix lunch, and wants to know everything we're doing and thinking. What do you suggest?"

ANSWER: — Sounds like she's got a problem which isn't being helped by having such easy access to your apron strings. Why don't you two rent the house to someone for a few months, hop in your car, and go off on a retirement jaunt. Maybe this will force your daughter to face up to the fact that she's a big girl now with a life and responsibilities of her own. It's great when older parents and children live close together so they can get together occasionally. But it's not wise to live so close that grown children remain emotionally dependent on their parents.

Pony Express May Be Faster

Lewistown, Mont. (AP) — The Pony Express used to operate in the far West and for Carla Boule of Lewistown, Mont. it would be welcomed back.

The mailman recently delivered a letter from her mother, Mrs. Elmer Lazure of Belt, about 80 miles from Lewistown.

It was postmarked Nov. 7, 1969.

Approval from the state's one-house legislature for the Burbach trip came only minutes after he explained the rollback attempt to legislators last week.

Burbach said the swift action by the state legislature points up advances of the unicameral form of legislature, permitting swifter action without consulting another group of legislators.

"However, in our opinion, the fire marshal could not adopt all provisions of the code in to."

Fire Marshal Joe Pluta estimated about 80 per cent of the code provisions would be knocked out if the amended bill becomes law and contended "it very definitely provides very much less life safety from fire to citizens of the state."

Sen. Burbach Says Trip Helped In Toning Down Price Rollback

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton told his colleagues in the Nebraska Legislature Monday that a trip to Washington last week had been "very beneficial" in opposing a proposed price rollback.

Burbach said he felt the trip was "very instrumental in toning down the proposed rollback from prices in effect Jan. 10 to those of March 16."

The rollback proposal was sent to the House floor last week by the House Rules Committee. Burbach asked and received permission from the Unicameral last week to go to Washington and oppose the rollback.

The effect of setting raw agricultural prices at the March 16 level would cut prices about $2 to $2.50 per beef animal at the livestock markets, Burbach estimated.

"We believe that the fire marshal, under the amendment, lawfully could promulgate and enforce as rules and regulations various provisions similar to those contained in the Life Safety Code," Sheldon said.

Measure Would Curb Safety Rules

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A bill now in the legislature would prevent the state fire marshal from adopting all the provisions of the Life Safety Code as minimum safety requirements, according to the state justice department.

The ruling was made by Asst. Atty. Gen. C. C. Sheldon in answer to a question from Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln about LB180, a bill designed to limit the authority of the fire marshal's office.

South Africa Expands Its Defense Arsenal

Cape Town, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's expanding defense arsenal includes a new $20 million communications center designed to withstand a nuclear or biological attack Sunk deep into the slopes of the Constantia Mountains near Cape Town, the center bristles with electronic gear, bulges with emergency provisions, and is built like a vault.

Two heavy steel doors protecting the main entrance are designed to withstand a direct hit by a 1,000-pound bomb. A series of secret doors can be used in an emergency.

But J.F. Brink, commander of the center, says the surrounding mountains virtually rule out an air or naval strike on the complex, called Silvermine.

3 Computers
Inside three computers plot the position of ships in an area stretching from the South Pole to North Africa and from South America to Bangladesh. Apart from their defense role, the computers help in international search and rescue operations.

Permanent radio communications are maintained with cities around the world as far apart as London, Dakar and Buenos Aires. Besides the main center, there are subsidiary installations on South Africa's east and west coasts.

"The Republic of South Africa is determined to defend itself and the free world to the utmost of its capabilities," Prime Minister John Vorster declared.

Most of the details of South Africa's defense system are secret, but a survey by the International Institute for Strategic Studies said the country has 17-300 regulars in the military service, and 92,000 reservists. This year's draft is expected to induct 33,000 recruits.

Hardware Not Lacking
Military hardware is not lacking either. The 10,000-man regular army has more than 1-100 vehicles, including tanks, armored cars and troop carriers. The navy cruises in an array of submarines, destroyers, minesweepers and other ships. The air force flies 166 combat planes.

The defense budget has been steadily growing, and jumped from $472 million in 1972 to $630 this year. Defense Minister Pieter W. Botha, however, said only about nine per cent of the national budget goes for defense.

South Africa produces many of its own arms, turning out ammunition, rifles, submachine guns, explosives, armored vehicles and a variety of electronic gear on a large scale.

Only for equipment such as specialized aircraft, submarines and sophisticated surface ships does the government buy abroad. France has supplied South Africa with jet fighters, helicopters and submarines, and the two countries have worked jointly to develop the Cactus missile.

Censors Hit Brazilian Record Industry

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The military-dominated government has applied a turn of the screw to Brazil's booming record industry.

Now the censors don't just want to read the words. They want to listen to the music, too.

The crackdown on the throbbing beats of sambas and bossa nova was launched at the end of March amid new restrictions on the Brazilian media.

Blue pencils have been eliminating controversial editorials or articles contrary to the government and banning off-color plays. They even suspended the country's most popular television program for 60 days for "grave disrespect of the Brazilian family" and being "contrary to morality and good customs."

Spokesmen for Brazil's 14 record companies claim the crackdown is most severe in their area since it involves "prepublication" censorship and will cause heavy losses because "we'll have to wait in line until the censor comes out of the listening booth."

The companies, whose sales have mushroomed 400 per cent in the past seven years, plan to appeal the government decision.

Censors have traditionally scrutinized the lyrics of new Brazilian and foreign songs. In 1971 more than 100 songs were thrown back at composers to revise the lyrics.

The roster of victims reads like an all-star selection of samba and bossa nova wizards: Antonio Carlos Jobim, Sergio Mendes and Brasil 77, Vinícius de Moraes, Edu Lobo and Chico Buarque de Hollanda.

But until last month, censors looked only at the verse to check whether the content was subversive or promoted sex and drug abuses.

Complete Recordings

Now, record companies have been ordered to submit complete orchestrated recordings.

Due to lack of personnel and, according to the record companies, the lack of a single tape recorder, censors have not yet returned the first batch of recordings.

Government officials apparently issued the new order because they felt some singers were trying to pull a fast one with censors.

One banned tune was innocuously entitled "procurando Tu" or "Looking for You" but close heed to the tune proved the singer was looking for something more risqué.

Another song describes "Uma Chuvinha Forte" — "A Strong Little Rain" — but different emphasis on the syllables provides a description of male sexual prowess.

No Fruit Market

Censors also thought that "Feira da Fruta" was not just a fruit market but a much bawdier version of downfall in the Garden of Eden.

Some composers privately confess the intent of their songs is to maliciously get back at censors. Others claim complete innocence and believe the censors are making mountains out of molehills.

In theory, foreign songs are also subject to the new ban. In the past, such songs as the Rolling Stones' "Sister Morphine" or the Beatles' "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds" — initials LSD — were banned because they dealt with drugs.

Criticism Suspected

"No one understands the slang of those songs anyway," says a foreign record producer. "So censorship of foreign songs won't be too stiff. We can always sell the discs in a closed envelope and with a mention that they should not be played in public places or on radio stations."

They did that with a French song accompanied by a lot of heavy breathing.

One of the most frequent targets of censors has been composer-singer Buarque.

His most famous joust with censors came over a samba that said: "Today my people speak in whispers, and their heads are held low. Today whatever you say goes."

Censors said the song could be construed as criticism of President Emílio G. Médici and the military government.

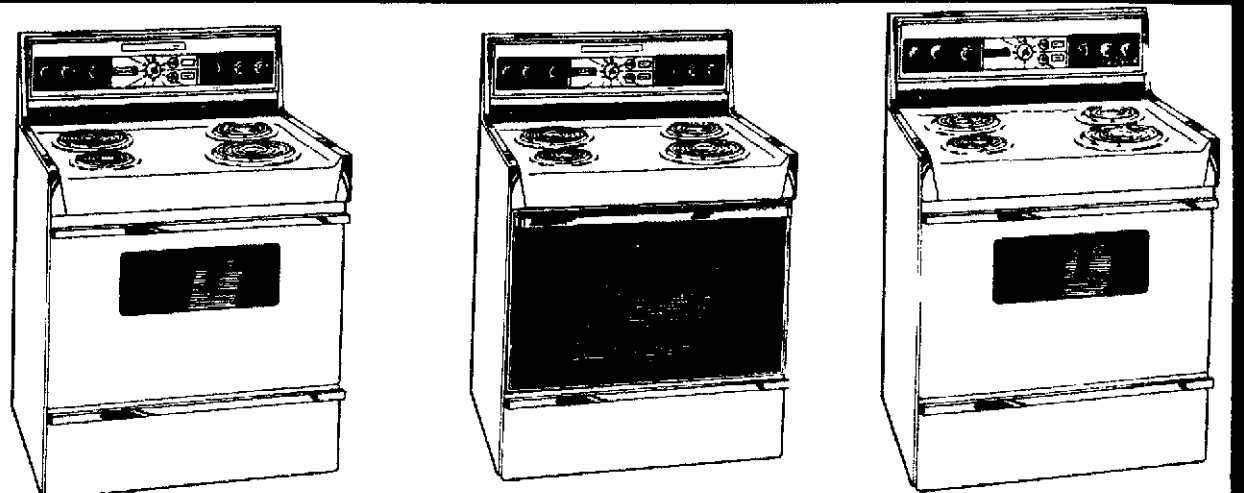

Last month police invaded the stage of a Buarque show when he started strumming the chords of the song without singing the words. They asked him to stop.

Says Buarque: "Things get tougher from one day to another without explanation. Six months ago, things got worse when we thought things were getting better. I had learned to follow the practice, but I had to change the routine and dance to the music."

Despite Buarque's and the record companies' complaints, some strange songs are heard. One of the most popular tunes on the radio these days goes: "Stop taking the pill..." But that's in line with government policy, which says Brazil needs more people to settle the Amazon jungle.

Working In Paradise Has Drawbacks

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Working in America's embassy to Paradise has its drawbacks. Each day is 48 hours long, but there's no time for the beach. And Tahiti is now off limits.

Three Americans cover four million square miles of the prettiest water in the world. Their territory has more white beaches, coral reefs and palm trees than all others combined.

"Let's see," says William (Todd) Becker, of Falls Church, Va., the consul. "I last went swimming six months ago."

Robert W. Skiff, the charge d'affaires, had a recent holiday at the beach — on a vacation out of his region.

Just like embassies in the snow and rain, the U.S. Embassy to Fiji stamps visas, repatriates destitute Americans, fills out forms in triplicate and shepherds visitors around.

But Skiff and Becker fly more than 18,000 miles a year each to run temporary branch offices in palace backrooms and quonset huts in the Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, Tonga, and the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

They also watch French Polynesia (Tahiti), New Caledonia and Wallis and Futuna Islands.

Altogether their area totals as much land as Maine, but it is sprinkled over enough water to cover the United States 1 1/4 times.

The International Dateline runs right through the region so that when the weekend has started in Fiji, it's still Friday in Tahiti.

Non-Americans in the islands must ship their passports to Fiji if they want to visit — or even change planes in — the United States. That can take months, and the embassy is not always well loved.

There are about 900 assorted American businessmen, missionaries, beachcombers, Peace Corps volunteers and fugitives regularly living in the area.

Actor Raymond Burr has an island off Suva and publisher Malcolm Forbes comes through in his airplane, "the Capitalist Tool."

The embassy is often busy with what it calls its yachties. One sailor gets seasick, for example, so he ships his boat on ahead and flies to meet it. Another did with no will, and the embassy went into the used yacht business.

At times the tiny office, under a hairdressing salon and over two duty-free shops, is all but impassable for all the crates and harpoons of Americans who died on island retreats, leaving no obvious heirs.

When one officer is gone, only two Americans run the whole operation, from decoding to political reporting. They are assisted by three Fijians.

The U.S. ambassador to New Zealand is accredited to Fiji and is head of the embassy and its consular district, but he is seldom there. The nearest other embassy is a long way away.

"It's pretty refreshing to be out in the unpolluted Pacific," says Skiff, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "but it can get lonely. We miss the theater and things like that."

His London-born wife is more direct: "I loathe the sun, I hate bathing, and I only go into the water to cool off. But I adore the Fijians."

Lincoln Kids Join Young Americans

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"What are you going to bring?" asked Mrs. Elaine Spady.

"Our best voices. And our best smiles," the youngsters chorused and grinned.

"But what's most important?" she pressed.

"Ourselves!" they giggled, almost forgetting.

The Others are first- and second-graders from Saratoga Elementary School who sang two songs with the Young Americans at Pershing Auditorium Monday night.

Began in January, the nine pupils - turned performers were selected from try-outs that began in January, said their music teacher, Mrs. Paula Morris.

First, 25 kids were chosen second grades, she said, and from those semi-finalists' auditions nine were selected for the performance.

They are first-graders Jan Roth, Doug Bice, Shani and Schawn Henke, Darcy Stone, Andrea McWilliams and Nick Wilson; and second-graders Billy Manning and Lisa Bice.

"We tried to find kids with a lot of personality plus the musical ability," Mrs. Morris said. But she gave the kudos to Mrs. Spady, a student teacher who took over from there.

The Young Americans mailed a tape of the songs for the kids to practice with and Mrs. Spady worked with them twice a week preparing for their appearance.

"They learned really fast," she said, and the kids proved that claim at rehearsal Monday afternoon.

They had learned "Marty" and "Under the Lollipop Tree" but the group substituted "Do-Re-Mi" for "Lollipop" at the last minute. The eager kids picked it right up. They even knew some hand movements to go with it that the Young Americans hadn't counted on.

Ken Stump, Young Americans public relations director, said, "It's a big thrill for them (the kids). They really enjoy doing it and they do a good job."

They did. In fact, Nick Wilson has already decided he wants to be a Young American. But only 15-21-year-olds can join the group and Nick is just 7.

Asked if he'd mind waiting eight years, Nick replied, "I don't care, just so I get to be one."

Two With Group
Nick might have to wait, but two Nebraskans, Cathy Cumming of Columbus and Sue Sehnert of McCook, performed with the touring group Monday night. Both are college freshmen.

City Council Candidates Present Views On Zoning

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Consideration of neighborhood organizations' wishes in reaching zoning decisions was stressed by all six City Council candidates Monday night.

However, the candidates differed on the priority that should be given to such preferences.

Addressing a crowd of more than 60 people at Gateway Auditorium, senior law student John Robinson said the burden should be placed upon the developer to prove that his plan is compatible with the surrounding neighborhood.

Attorney Max Denney said zoning can preserve the true character of an area, but that the council would have to study all facets of the question before reaching a decision.

Attorney William Thierstein said the developer is "not opportunistic at all," but "trying to put land to a more productive use."

Housewife Sue Bailey called for a greater emphasis to be placed on planning, saying, "We're letting the developers do our planning for us now."

Retired Public Safety Director Emmett Junge said that citizen groups help provide the democratic viewpoint. However, he stressed that the council would not always follow that group's wishes in making zoning decisions.

Realtor Nancy Childs said that previous councils have inappropriately zoned commercial developments in residential areas. Two such conflicts she cited included Treasure City at 27th and U.S. 2 and Union Loan and Savings on So. 70th.

Additionally, Mrs. Bailey said she would like to see the Planning Department assist neighborhood groups and developers alike in drawing up long range plans.

And Robinson said he would urge the continued involvement of neighborhood groups in city government.

Mrs. Childs recommended that the zoning ordinance be updated every five years to keep pace with new types of developments.

On the Goals and Policies Committee report Denney said that while he generally agreed with the report's content, he would use that report as a guideline only.

Thierstein also recommended that the report be used for background material only. He said the City Council "is the ongoing goals and policies for the city."

However, Robinson disagreed, saying he supported the report's recommendations. He pointed out that the committee which drew up the report represented a wide segment of the community.

The neighborhood groups sponsoring the forum included: Citizens for City Planning, Clinton Neighborhood Organization, 43rd and Normal Zoning Appeal Group, Near South Neighborhood Association, Northeast Lincoln Community Association, University Place Community Organization and the Hillside Residents Group.

Former Leader Of IRA, MacStiofain, Out Of Jail

DUBLIN (AP) — Sean MacStiofain, 44, lost face in the guerrilla movement by vowing to starve himself to death in jail unless he was released. Instead, he accepted first liquid, and, after 59 days, food. He served nearly five months of a six-month sentence for IRA membership and was freed early for good conduct.

"I still stand for the same as I did when I went to prison," MacStiofain told newsmen before driving off to an undisclosed location.

Whether he returns to the top leadership of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, however, remains to be seen.

'Majority' Back Youth Symphony Trip

A parent group backing the Lincoln Youth Symphony's planned participation in a summer music festival in Europe said Monday that the "vast majority of parents feel the entire campaign has had positive effects."

The group said it believes statements to the contrary printed in a Sunday Journal and Star story were "misleading."

Monday's statement was

15 Soloists, 6 Groups Given Superior Rating

Fifteen soloists and six small ensembles were given superior ratings in an all-city contest. University of Nebraska-Lincoln music professors John Zel and Emily McKnight judged the event.

Winning soloists, include: Mary Burcham, soprano; Polly Hammond, alto; Nancy Kroeger, soprano; Terri Novak, soprano; Bruce Thompson, bass; Jan Hollett, soprano; Bob Vance, tenor; Paula Moon, alto; Janet Sims, soprano; Sherri Dienstfry, prepared and distributed to news media by Faye James, chairman of the symphony advisory committee; Phil James, president of the Lincoln Youth Symphony Foundation; Tom Gortam, secretary of the foundation; Joe Neal, co-chairman of the raffle committee, and June Moore, assistant symphony conductor.

Only Few Quoted
The statement said the Sunday story was misleading because it quoted only a few parents while soprano; Pam Garnett, alto; Deb Garver, soprano, Deb Graphentee, soprano; Jamie Sommers, bass; Sue Stephenson, soprano.

The winning ensembles are: the Countesses; a combined ensemble of the Countesses and the Noblemen, all from Southeast High School, Triple Trio; Minichoir, all from Northeast; Ennead, Madrigals; Boys Octet, all from Lincoln High two-thirds of the parents voted in favor of the trip.

Students voted in favor of the project by an even greater majority, the statement said.

"Students who do not wish to participate in the trip were assured that a decision not to go would not affect their position in the orchestra," said the statement.

"Not one of those have quit and some of those not going are among the best workers in the fund drive."

The statement said most students and most parents have joined in the drive to raise the necessary funds.

'Simply Not True'
The statement also says that a quote contained in the Sunday story, indicating that the price to parents is increasing, is "simply not true."

Practice Runs

Oslo, Norway (UPI) — The Soviet Navy has been conducting a major exercise in the Arctic Ocean off Northern Norway, a Norwegian Defense Spokesman said.

The statement also said that the group is continuing to investigate charges of over-pricing against the National Educational Scholarship Foundation, American sponsor of the European event.

"If we find anything questionable and feel that we should withdraw from the festival, some alternate musical experience will be provided for these young people who have worked so hard."

The statement asked for continued support to complete the fund drive, which is seeking to raise about $68,000, half of which has been pledged by parents.

Council OKs $6 Million Bond Issue For Building

The City Council Monday approved the issue of $6 million in special obligation general revenue bonds which would be used to fund a portion of the proposed City Services Building.

The bonds will be used to pay for the 1,000-car parking garage portion of the building, to be located in the block bounded by 11th and 12th, from N to O.

The five-level structure also would house a bus terminal for the Lincoln Transportation System and retail space around the perimeter of the building. Plans call for the retail space to take up about 20% of the area.

In other action the council placed on pending two weeks a proposal which would liberalize the city's prohibition against the parking of pickup trucks on residential streets.

The two-week delay resulted when it became clear that the proposal would go down to defeat as presently drafted.

Councilman Bob Sikyta has proposed the ordinance, which would allow the parking of pickups which do not exceed seven feet in width and 18 feet in length.

The council killed a related ordinance which would have limited the freight capacity of the trucks which could be legally parked on residential streets.

Height Limit Sought

Councilman Dick Baker wanted a height limitation included in the specifications, saying that sight problems at intersections could be created without such a limitation.

Councilman Steve Cook said, "We're opening up a can of worms."

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis added, "This is going to dump many more trucks on the streets—people don't want this."

Councilman Merle Hale said he would like to see some relief given to the owners of smaller pickups, but said he had some reservations about the ordinance as drafted.

Sikyta, disgruntled over other council members' reaction commented, "What's going to happen over the next two weeks except for it (the proposal) to lie on paper and get dirty?"

Draft Alternatives

City Atty. Dick Wood was directed to draft several alternative proposals for council consideration.

In further action the council approved with amendments the establishment of a joint city-county Commission on Aging. The Lancaster County Board is scheduled to take action on the proposal Tuesday.

Those amendments call for the commission to be established as a city department so that the commission would be directly responsible to the city.

Additionally, members of the commission would be jointly appointed by the mayor and County Board, subject to the approval of the council.

North Platte Man's Body Found

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP)—A 36-year-old North Platte man, reported missing Nov. 7, was found dead in the Missouri River two miles north of the Bellevue Marina Monday, Sarpy County sheriff's officers said.

An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death of Gordon Halverson who was found by a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers crew, deputies said.

Foul play is not suspected, deputies said.

Japan Records Record Deficit During March

Tokyo (AP) — Japan's overall balance of payments recorded a record deficit of $1.09 billion in March, the last month of the country's 1972 fiscal year.

This compares with an $894 million surplus in February and a $118 million surplus a year earlier, the Finance Ministry said Monday in a provisional accounting.

For all of fiscal 1972, the country's overall balance of payments surplus dipped to $2.96 billion from $8.04 billion the previous year.

The large March deficit was a highly unusual event. Except for January, which normally shows a net outflow for seasonal reasons, last month was the first time Japan has run an overall balance of payments deficit since March 1970, when a $78 million deficit was recorded.

Schuyler Woman Sues For Welfare Aid

A Schuyler woman filed suit in Lancaster District Court Monday seeking reversal of a State Welfare Department order upholding the decision of Colfax County Welfare officials denying Aid to Families of Dependent Children (AFDC) and medical payments and food stamps to her for the benefit of one of her children.

Carolyn Bazer alleges in her petition against State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham that in the fall of 1972 she and her three children moved from Omaha to Schuyler.

According to the petition, prior to the move, the family had received $192 per month in AFDC payments, but on April 1, 1973, Colfax County Division of Public Welfare decreased the payment to $158 by removing her daughter, Tammy, from the family unit.

She contends that medical assistance was also denied Tammy and food stamp benefits were stopped.

Mrs. Bazer alleges that the Colfax County Welfare decision was upheld on appeal with the decrease in payment being based on a finding that Tammy was the beneficiary of a trust fund rendering her ineligible for further assistance benefits.

According to the petition, the child was "badly injured" in a lawn mower accident which resulted in a substantial loss of her foot and serious injuries to her knee as well as a post-traumatic incident which required open heart surgery leaving the child's chest deformed.

The plaintiff alleges that an action was brought against the child's grandmother in connection with the injuries resulting in a $10,000 settlement which was deposited in a trust fund and will not be available for the benefit of the child until she reaches the age of majority.

Mrs. Bazer contends that this trust fund cannot be considered as income in determining the child's eligibility for assistance since the funds are not available.

She asks the court to reverse the decision of the State Welfare Department and award the payments retroactive to April 1.

Suit Filed In Accident

A $75,000 suit has been filed in Lancaster District Court by Jack B. Riggie against Victor E. Loggreen in connection with a Nov. 24, 1969, two-car accident. Riggie alleges that the Loggreen vehicle collided with the rear of Riggie's vehicle when it was stopped at the intersection of 50th and A on So. Cotner.

He alleges negligence on the part of the defendant in that he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor, did not maintain proper lookout or control of his vehicle and that he was traveling at excessive speed. As a result of the collision, Riggie alleges that he suffered a cervical spine injury requiring fusion and injury to one eye and one wrist.

Man Is Charged With Holdup

A 36-year-old man from Las Vegas has been arraigned in Lancaster County Court on a charge of robbery in connection with a holdup Saturday night at Schrier's Liquor Store, 1002 South

The man, Hildreth Eugene Palmer, was also charged with two counts of burglary. The burglaries took place Sunday morning — hours after the holdup.

Palmer was arrested early

Sunday morning when Lincoln police officers on patrol noticed a rear door open at a Phillip's 66 service station at 2701 West O, police said.

The officers who entered the station found Palmer sitting at a desk in the station office, according to police reports. Police said Palmer had a .38-caliber revolver in his belt. An almost empty liquor bottle was found on the desk.

According to police reports, about $120 was taken in a burglary believed to have occurred earlier Sunday morning at a Texaco Service Station at 401 So. 10th.

According to police reports, two empty paper sacks matching the description of those used in the holdup at Schriers were found at the Texaco station.

In the holdup at Schriers, a man holding a revolver ordered two employees to fill two paper sacks with cash, and then made them and a customer lie on the floor while he escaped.

The gunman netted about $300.

A preliminary hearing date for Palmer was set for May 3. Bond was set at $15,000.

According to police, warrants have also been issued for Palmer in Oregon for burglary and parole violation.

Easter Egg Hunt This Saturday At Pioneer Park

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 131 will hold its 24th annual Easter egg hunt Saturday at Pioneer Park.

This year's hunt will be combined with the City Recreation hunt, and will be open to children from the first through sixth grades only. The hunt will begin at 9 a.m.

Two hunting grounds, one for children from the first to third grades and one for fourth to sixth grade, will be stocked. There will be 6,000 candy eggs hidden in the two areas. Over 1,000 winners will receive prizes. Prizes include radios, watches, cameras and 2 one-year supplies of bubble gum.

Less Aid To Be Given To Tax Cutters

Omaha (AP) — Communities that use federal revenue-sharing money to reduce local taxes will get less money under that government program in the future, a federal official said Monday.

revenuesharing money to reduce property taxes next year.

Jacobberger said the money could be used to cut the general fund levy by more than two mills, $2 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The city faces a two mill increase next year in the levy for retirement of general obligation bonds, according to Finance Director Edwin Hewitt.

Jacobberger said by using federal funds, the bond fund levy increase could more than be offset by a general fund levy reduction.

Communities which use the revenue-sharing money to reduce the local taxes "will find themselves out of the ball game," Mills said.

Walk For Development Nets $16,146

The Walk for Development Saturday netted $16,146 in pledges, according to Harry Baumert, chairman of the event.

Baumert said of the 1,195 walkers registered, 1,038 finished the 19-mile route. The average pledge per walker per mile, he said, was 76 cents.

Baumert reported participants included 745 children through junior high school age, 182 high schoolers and 288 people college age and older.

He urged that all walkers collect their money as soon as possible and submit the collection envelopes to the First National Bank drive-in/walk-in at 13th and L.

Of the total pledged, Lincoln self-help anti-poverty projects and foreign projects will each share 42.5%, or $6,862.

Lincoln beneficiaries include Cedars Home for Children, WICS (Women in Community Service) Home for Girls, the Lincoln Family Shelter, Nebraska Special Olympics, Lincoln Personal Crisis Service and the Indian Inter-Tribal Development Program.

The foreign projects, Baumert said, are the Land Distribution Project in Guatemala and Agricultural Vocational Aid to Education in the Dominican Republic.

The 15% remainder, or $2,422, goes to the Walk for Development sponsor, the American Freedom from Hunger Foundation in Washington, D.C., Baumert said. The foundation will use the money for "educational purposes in world development through school curriculums, newsletters and conferences," he said.

Textbook Loaning Said Bad Precedent

The attorney general's office, in urging the State Supreme Court Monday to strike the 1971 law permitting the loan of public school textbooks to private schools, said the act would set a precedent for subsidization of parochial schools.

A favorable ruling on the law's constitutionality would "expose the parochial institutions to the danger that state aid might result in a measure of state control over religious instruction," Asst. Atty. Gen. C. C. Sheldon said.

The law had been upheld by Lancaster County District Judge Samuel Van Pelt, but as yet no books have been loaned.

"True," Sheldon said, "the amount of state aid involved with respect to any given parochial school child would be relatively small, but (the constitutionality) of a legislative plan is not to be determined on the basis of dollars and cents involved.

"Constitutionality must be determined by the court upon the basis of the overall impact of the court's ruling. Were the textbook loan statute... declared valid, it would open the door for the complete subsidization of parochial institutions of learning..."

The suit was brought to court by William D. Gaffney of Omaha after the State Department of Education had denied requests to provide his children who attend Pius X grade school with textbooks.

Both the federal and particularly the state constitutions have strict prohibitions separating church and state, Sheldon noted.

Recent court decisions "expressly repudiate" the child-benefit theory which permitted such loan arrangements in other states and which were at one time ruled legal, he argued.

"These later decisions clearly expose the fictitious character of the rationale and would seem to forecast the not-too-distant eventual abandonment of the doctrine — on the theory that any financial benefit to the child or parent, almost inevitably, will ultimately benefit the church. We predict that the (U.S.) Supreme Court ultimately will find that government financing of textbooks for parochial school children does conflict with the First Amendment."

'10x10' Record Said Held By NU Faculty Members

Ten University of Nebraska faculty members who run regularly for their health believe they hold a national record for what they call "10 by 10" — meaning the length of time required for 10 people to run 10 miles each.

The UNL teachers accomplished the feat this weekend in 11 hours and 15 minutes, in response to a challenge from a Toledo, Ohio, group which did the same thing last fall in 11 hours and 34 minutes. As of last Friday, the Toledo group told the UNL challengers their record had not yet been beaten.

The local runners were Dr. Chuck Sayward of the philosophy department, Dr. Roger Wiegand of mathematics, Dr. Henry Baumgarten, chemistry chairman, Dr. Roy Sneddon of civil engineering, Don Lins of Navy ROTC, Dr. Doug Erlanson of philosophy, Dr. Robert Brown of S-U-N, Dr. Jim Carr of Chemistry and Phillip Sienna of recreation. All are members of the UNL Physical Fitness club, which emphasizes running as a means of maintaining health.

Agenda Is Full For Tuesday's Ed Board Meet

The Lincoln Board of Education has a lengthy and full agenda for a meeting Tuesday in the Public Schools Administration Building.

The meeting begins at 8 a.m., when the board will meet with the superintendent's student advisory committee for a discussion on a student request for an optional attendance experiment.

Beginning about 8:40 a.m., with the report of Supt. John Prash, the board will consider a recommendation on continuation of the "open campus" noon hour at high schools, consider staffing requests for 1973-74, hear a progress report on negotiations and review a road plan for East High School.

The Board will also get an evaluation of multi-unit schools and hear progress reports on several federal proposals.

Meeting Slated By Uni Group

The University Place Community Organization (UPCO) will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday according to the Rev. Don Bredthauer, UPCO secretary.

The meeting agenda includes discussion of the proposed city charter amendment which would affect the Northeast Radial, a comprehensive architectural plan for University Place, and a Uni Place clean-up day, Bredthauer said.

He said architecture student Lee Schultz will hold "preliminary conversations" on a plan for beautification of off-street parking, storefront renovation and a possible mall in Uni Place.

UPCO will finalize plans for a clean-up day Saturday, April 28, from Adams to St. Paul and 33rd to 56th. Bredthauer said garbage haulers and possibly the City of Lincoln will provide trucks for the clean-up, and students will supply the manpower.

Seven Persons Are Indicted By Grand Jury

An embezzlement indictment was returned against Robert Creighton Jr., cashier at the Overton National Bank, for allegedly misappropriating $500 between Sept. 1, 1971 and Dec. 31, 1972.

Five counts relating to the distribution of controlled substances were filed against Steven Harnsberger. The controlled substances involved were identified as cocaine, hashish, marijuana, LSD and psilocybin.

Indictments for forgery were returned against Robert B. Fowler, Barbara L. Fowler, Cleo F. Vogan, Harry Lee Buckles and Constance J. Schneider, also known as Constance Jones.

Nixon Beats IRS Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has beaten the deadline for filing his federal income tax, but hardly.

Customarily, the chief executive's tax return goes special delivery to the commissioner of internal revenue. The White House said the hand delivery was made last Thursday — well in advance of the Monday midnight deadline.

Steps Taken To Speed Rail Transport Of Grain

Gov. J. James Exon reported Monday that some railroads serving Nebraska have initiated steps to speed the transport of grain.

Steps include obtaining of additional coal cars from eastern railroads and the routing of grain to Newport News, Va., for loading on ships.

"This is the first time during the current crisis that grain will be moved to eastern ports," Exon said. "It is hoped that such action will begin to relieve the tieup at the gulf ports and make more care available to reduce the seriousness of the present shortages."

Because of the trouble of getting Nebraska's 1972 crops moved out, grain has been piled on the ground in many cases.

Exon said the Nebraska grain has an eventual international market, but tieups of grain cars at Gulf ports have caused chaotic transportation difficulties.

POSTCARD

Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Summer is coming in and so are the bills. I told the children: "We're headed for the poorhouse!"

"Get rich in spite of yourself." That is a handsome offer.

It is an ad for a book — "It can be mastered within three hours." The author developed this while making four fortunes!

What did he do with four fortunes? I mean, it sounds like this man is some kind of nut. He can make the loot but cannot hang onto it.

The ad says: "If this book does not bring you at least $100 in extra earnings within six months, return the book for a full refund of $1."

If the book doesn't bring $100, they should send me $100. Never mind the $1. If I only needed $1, I would not be sending for the book.

We are packing for the Far East. The inscrutable Orient. Bag and baggage. Travel checks and high hopes. Perhaps to make a fortune with or without the one dollar book.

I am fortune's cookie. Everything I touch turns to bills. It shows I have great credit. No money, but the banker has confidence in me.

The banks shower sharp-toothed credit cards on me. ("Getting the plastic on the air" is the way they talk about this wholesaling of credit cards.)

The banker wishes to give me a Ready Reserve Account: "Anywhere between $500 and $6,000 extra money behind your checking account."

This is so tempting I shouted to the household: "Handcuff me and don't let me sign anything. Remember what happened in England."

When I go away, I am expected to bring back presents. No wonder I am not rich in spite of myself.

"What did you bring me?" Well I brought it for four children. I cost me a ruddy fortune. I could afford to travel. I couldn't afford to come home.

Finally it got so the dog expected me to bring something home. I made a mistake. I brought him a doggy bag from Air France, the gourmet's airline.

The little waterproof bag in the seat pocket makes a perfect doggy bag. I filled it with choice items: Leftover pate, Normandy butter pats. Steak with mushrooms.

I put it in my flight bag. I took it home to Cody, the 85-pound retriever pup. Possibly the only dog to get a first-class, airborne doggy bag, direct from Paris.

Overdrawing your checking account — with the bank picking it up — is new in the U.S.

It's been a long thing in England. When I moved to London I was used to banks that sent stern letters: "We find your account is overdrawn in the sum of . . ."

Then they told you what would happen. Stony lonesome.

Not so in merry England. I was on the shorts from the move. I went down to borrow a few pounds.

The banker was a natty chap. Gray morning trousers. Black coat and tie.

He said: "Just write your checks for whatever you have in mind. We'll cover them. Glad to be of assistance."

He said I was good for a thousand or so.

As you can imagine, I went wild. Ran up a grand in overdrafts. And spent months getting even.

These particular brand and models represent the most performance and quality for this particular price. The Harman Kardon 330A AM/FM receiver is the most powerful in its price range — enough power to drive two stereo speaker systems without strain. This is truly important if you intend to add sound to other rooms in your home. The Harman Kardon 330A also has the widest frequency response in its price range which adds extra realism to the sound you hear. The BSR 610 represents a true automatic turntable with an arm that will track even the most delicate record and at the same time bring out everything that was put into it. The Altec 886's are a two-way speaker system that will fill a large room with an even spread of sound at all angles. See a Newfangled for a demonstration . . . he's brand name too. By the way, Mrs. Charles Bradley correctly identified our Classic Radio in last week's Ad as an Old Stewart Warner model 300 . . . we're going to send her an Old Alexander Hamilton for that.

Open House Slated By LOMR

The Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) will hold an open house from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesday at Trinity Methodist Church, 16th & A, featuring 12-15 children in LOMR's Human Development Program.

Susan Weinstein, LOMR community information coordinator, said the open house will provide "a chance for the public to see what's happening" in the program.

Program director Kathy Hamilton will have the children demonstrate motor development and musical skills. There will be a display of items the children have made, and films of the children's progress will be shown.

Eastridge Prairie Valley South Hills

The fact that Friday, the 13th, slipped by relatively unnoticed may be fortunate or unfortunate, depending upon how you look at it and also depending upon how your day developed.

Whatever the case, we are certain that ladders, black cats, and other signs traditionally associated with bad luck were avoided like the plague last Friday — the first of two such Friday-the-13ths, of 1973. You may stand warned by the way, that another such 'bad luck' day will beleaguer us during the month of July.

But for one suburban lass, Friday, the 13th, went far from unnoticed for that was an extra special day. You see, on that day, Friday, April 13, Miss Betsy Shepherd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Shepherd of Eastridge, celebrated her ninth birthday.

Keeping in the tradition of the day, the party followed a more or less superstitious theme. The young guests, all second and third-graders at Eastridge School, were instructed, upon their arrival, to remain outdoors until all of the advance preparations had been completed. They then entered the Shepherd home, passing beneath a ladder — but once inside, each one received a penny to place in her left shoe, a perfect guarantee of good luck.

The party provided its share of education, as well as enjoyment since the youngsters took their

in the suburban areas

turns at reading information aloud about the various fun and traditional superstitions. Then they made necklaces and decorated them with witches hex signs — all with the purpose of warding off evil spirits also took their turns at breaking a pinata decorated with good and bad luck symbols. The pinata was decorated by the birthday celebrant's symbols. The pinata was decorated by the birthday celebrant's couple's other daughters, Kim.

Among the children taking part in the Friday, the 13th birthday celebration were Linda Thomas, Elizabeth Panarelli, Valerie Christy, Louise Wiebers, Dawn Wenzl, Christy Zinnecker, Tracy Macke, Ann and Suzy Osbourne, and Therine Pavel.

Other names on the guest list for the party honoring Miss Shepherd were Kelly Wilson, Jill Curtis, Suzie Arkfeld, Lora Jo Kemble, Julie Beranek, Amy Weides, Shelly Smith, Kim Hindman, Susan DeVries, and Christy Grangenett.

This morning we hear very important news from the Prairie Valley area, and it concerns a very close relative of Mrs. Anna Macaluso.

It seems that Mrs. Macaluso's daughter, Sister Marie Christelle Macaluso of Omaha, was recently promoted to full professor at St. Mary's College in Omaha. Sister Macaluso is in charge of the Department of Biology and Medical Technology at the College, and she attended the University of Nebraska, Creighton University and the St. Mary's College, before receiving her doctorate degree from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha.

Of course, Mrs. Macaluso was delighted to hear the good news about her daughter, but she was equally happy to learn that her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Macaluso and children of Fremont, are planning to spend the Easter weekend at her home.

Mid-April Wedding

The wedding of Miss Frances Elaine White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon White of Broken Bow, and Leroy Donald Gimpel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gimpel of Aurora, took place on Saturday evening, April 14, at the Evangelical Covenant Church in Aurora. The 7 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Wesley Sundberg.

Miss Cindy White, as the maid of honor, and Miss Delores White, the bridesmaid, were their sister's only attendants.

Garry Gimpel served his twin brother as best man, and seating the guests were Melvin Kurpjuweit of Lincoln, and Arthur Decker of Grand Island.

The bride appeared in a gown of white satin, designed in the empire mode and accented with lace and pearls. The lace and pearl motif patterned the fitted bodice, fashioned with a high collar and bracelet length sleeves which were completed with a deep, lace ruffle. Beneath the high waistline the skirt was an A-line silhouette and was completed with a train banded with lace and pearls. Her fingertip-length veil was held in place with a bandeau of pearl-dotted lace.

The bride who was graduated from the Midwest Beauty School, and who was a member of the staff at Lucille Duerr's in Lincoln, also was graduated from the Lincoln Technical College School of Practical Nursing. Mr. Gimpel is a graduate of the Central Nebraska Technical College at Hastings, and is a member of the Gimpel Twins Repair Co., in Aurora.

Woman's Day Festivities Planned

The Women's Wesleyan Educational Council of Nebraska (WWEC) will observe its 77th anniversary at a Women's Day which will be held on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus on Tuesday, April 24.

All Methodist women and friends of NWU are welcome to attend the festivities, according to Mrs. J. LaVerne Jay, president of the State Council.

Highlighting the day-long meeting will be an address to be presented by NWU president, Dr. Vance Rogers, at the birthday luncheon which will be held at the Campus Center. "The Community of Wesleyan" will be Dr. Rogers' topic, and also participating in the program will be Miss Mary Howell and Miss Cary Lewis, who will present musical selections.

Woman's Day on Campus co-chairmen are Mrs. John H. Fry and Mrs. Frederick E. Blumer. Mrs. Roger Rhodes is chairman of the birthday luncheon committee.

The agenda for the annual Woman's Day celebration includes registration which will be held at the C. C. White Building, beginning at 9:30 o'clock that morning; the council's annual business meeting, election and installation of state officers, introduction of scholarship recipients, and a special program, entitled "Students on Campus." Dr. Milton Evans will serve as moderator for the panel which will consist of presentations by students Miss Shelia Evans, Miss Mary Beth Adamson of Exeter, Allan Harmer of Norfolk, and Joanne Kay Rennells of Dunlap, Iowa.

The aim of the WWEC is to interest Methodist women across Nebraska and the friends of NWCU in promoting the welfare of the university. In addition, the State Council annually presents 24 scholarships to men and women students.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Way make announcement of the marriage of their daughter, Brenda Eloise, to Pvt. Ralph Donald Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Johnson.

The ceremony was solemnized in Maryland, on Friday, April 6.

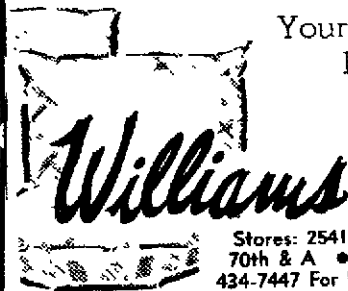

The attendants were Mrs. Sandra Patterson and Timothy Patterson.

Pvt. Johnson and his bride will reside in Aberdeen, Md.

The bridegroom now is attending the U.S. Army specialist school in heavy weapons in Aberdeen, and upon his graduation he will have an assignment in Germany where he and his bride will reside.

Venturists To Co-Hostess Conference

When more than 200 members of the North Central Region of the Soroptimist and Venture Clubs converge on Hotel Radisson-Cornhusker for their 52nd conference during the weekend of April 28, the Lincoln Venture Club will take an active part in the festivities. Of course, those two divisions will have joint, as well as separate, business meetings and social functions, but the membership of the Venture Club, which is the young women's professional organization sponsored by the local Soroptimist Club, is particularly looking forward to the Saturday afternoon, April 28, luncheon for which they will serve as the official hostesses. And advance preparations for that special festivity already are well under way. There is the planning of the theme and the menu; there are room reservations to be made — and a thousand and one various other details to be attended to, as well as the fabricating of table decorations.

Meeting

When the members of the Sharon Extension Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Mark Hedges for a dessert luncheon, they spent the afternoon making polydomes, or plaques, which will be used as favors for the State Council of Home Extension Clubs which will convene in Lincoln in June.

Mrs. Orval Wissink conducted the work party, and Mrs. Joe Fountain served as assisting hostess for the dessert luncheon. The extension group has scheduled a special meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Francis Hall on Tuesday afternoon, April 24, for all members interested in making the polydomes for their own personal use.

ABBY: there's a difference of opinion

DEAR ABBY. That Waterloo, Ia., man who shot and killed a poor little squirrel while the squirrel was eating from a bird-feeder should have been reported to the police.

In the first place, it's against the law to fire a gun within the city limits of Waterloo. And in the second place, it's against the law to hunt squirrels out of season — which is only a few weeks in the fall. And in the third place, I'll bet that man didn't have a hunting license in the first place.

I'm from Waterloo, so I should know.

NAME WITHHELD ON REQUEST

DEAR ABBY: I cried when I read about the man who shot and killed a hungry squirrel while it was eating from a bird-feeder. It reminded me of a squirrel that used to come into our yard nearly every day. We named him Freddy. At first he was timid, but after he knew he could trust me he would come running to me when I called him, and he would actually eat out of my hand. How he loved cubes of bread covered with peanut butter!

One day an old crab of a neighbor caught Freddy burying a nut in his yard, so he hit him with a two-by-four and stunned him. Then he proceeded to beat that poor little creature to death with the two-by-four. I was told all this by a neighbor who saw the whole thing. My heart ached for a week.

I am not going to make friends with any more squirrels that come into my yard because I think Freddy lost his fear of man when I became his friend, and that trust cost him his life.

I enjoy your column. Some of those letters are hard to believe — but then who would believe a man would beat a squirrel to death?

MISSING FREDDY
DEAR ABBY: I am not for killing anything except in self-defense, but squirrels can be a real nuisance.

I once had a fairly tame squirrel come into my yard regularly to get sunflower seeds from my bird-feeder. That naughty bird-feeder damaged my expensive new feeder with his sharp teeth and claws. At first I was very angry. Then I realized that the poor little thing must have been so hungry he just had to get at those sunflower seeds some way.

I didn't shoot him, but I did put Vaseline on the pole so he couldn't climb the feeder.

LOVES ANIMALS
DEAR ABBY: The poor thing probably went squirrely with frustration trying to climb that feeder pole.

Opening lead - six of spades.

As the play progresses and declarer learns more and more about the distribution of the unseen cards, he can frequently apply this knowledge to accomplish his purpose.

Here is a typical case where West leads a spade against South's notrump. The outcome seems highly promising after South wins with the ten, since all that declarer needs is a 3-3 club break or a normal 3-2 division in diamonds. If either suit behaves sensibly, South automatically acquires a ninth trick.

But when declarer plays the ace of diamonds at trick two, East unexpectedly shows out, and when declarer then turns for succor to clubs by cashing the A-K-Q, West likewise shows out, discarding a diamond.

For one quick moment it looks as though South should have stood in bed, since he seems to have no ninth trick anywhere. But, if he keeps a cool head, South realizes that the contract is nevertheless ice cold.

He knows that West started with precisely five diamonds and two clubs, and that West — for his vulnerable overcall — must have started with five (possibly six) spades. Accordingly, he plays a heart to the ace and, when West follows suit with the queen, he learns for certain that West could not have been dealt more than five spades.

The rest of the play is simple enough. Declarer leads the jack of spades from dummy, permitting West to cash his A-K-Q-3, but West must then lead a diamond from the J-10-8 through dummy's Q-9-5 up to South's K-7-2.

Regardless of which diamond West chooses to return, South makes three more diamond tricks and the contract. That's all there is to it.

One of the most momentous festivities associated with the Camp Fire Girls organization is the Grand Council Fire.

That special event, held periodically, takes on grandiose proportions. It involves not only the entire Council, but Camp Fire Blue Bird, and Horizon Club groups in the encircling area — with each individual group doing its share to contribute to the success of the endeavor.

The Lincoln Council of Camp Fire Girls will sponsor its city-wide Grand Council on Sunday May 20, and that never-to-be forgotten event will be held at Pershing Auditorium, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

With their organization based primarily on Indian lore, the Camp Fire Girls, representing the three Lincoln districts and the area affiliates, will focus their Indian lore talents at the Grand Council Fire on special dances which will be presented by members of the Horizon Club, and also will single out individuals and groups for special recognition.

Of course, a festivity of such a grand scale requires advance planning and work on the behalf of all participants. For example, the members of Elu Kani Manynen, the fifth grade Camp Fire Girl unit at Clara McPhee School, have been spending time at their meetings and their Saturday mornings preparing

Discussion

* Dating — Relating and Remarriage — were the topics discussed by the members of Parents Without Partners at a meeting which was held on Wednesday evening, April 11.

Among the questions considered at the 7:45 o'clock discussion session: Are you going to be an observer or participant when it comes to living your life? What does it take to get into "the action?" and What is the best — single or married living?

Installation Ceremony

New officers of the National Organization for Women (NOW) were elected and installed at a meeting which took place on Thursday evening, April 12.

Among the officers who will serve until April, 1974, are Shirley Linderholm, president, Betty Corea, vice president, Lois MacIn, secretary, Mary Lou Connell, treasurer, Emily Trickett, membership, Gail Anderson, role consciousness, Linda Goldberg, public relations, Marcia DeCamp, newsletter, editor, DeLoris Clouse, speakers' bureau, and Peggy Kelley, historian.

Task Force chairpersons also were appointed recently, and they include Karen Flowers, employment, Ruth Ernst, education, Yvonne Leung, legal and legislative research, Jill Littrell, health, and Donna Polk, child care.

Higher Education Enrollment Continues To Drop

The Nebraska Higher Education Facilities Commission said Monday that enrollment in traditional academic institutions of higher education in the state dropped about two per cent in 1972, continuing a decline that began the previous year.

The only sector that continued to attract more students was major universities, including both the University of Nebraska and Creighton University.

Private colleges and universities and the state colleges, however, continued an enrollment decline that began several years ago, said the commission.

And public junior colleges also experienced a decrease in student enrollment as determined on a head-count basis.

Technical Up
Monday's report excluded community college enrollment, which the commission said in a separate report last week grew by as much as 39% from the fall of 1971 to the fall of 1972.

A 10-year survey of enrollments showed that the total enrollment in the state began to drop in 1971, a year in which the University of Nebraska also experienced a slight decline.

The drop in private colleges and universities began in 1968 and the enrollment decline in the four state colleges began in 1970, the commission said. Down 1,271.

Taking the institutions as a total figure, the commission said the fall 1972 enrollment was down 1,271 students from the previous fall.

In fall 1972 the total number of students enrolled in the traditional academic institutions was 62,996.

The biggest single enrollment decrease among the institutions included in the survey was at Wayne State College, where the 1972 headcount was down more than 22% from the previous year.

The biggest single increase, 12.9%, was at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

Among the state colleges and private schools, those experiencing enrollment decreases of more than 10% included Chadron State, Wayne State, Concordia, Dana, Doane and John F. Kennedy.

The only schools in that category to increase were Bellevue College, the College of St. Mary and Union College.

Among major universities, UN-Lincoln was up .2%, UN at Omaha was up 3.1% and Creighton was up 3.9%.

The total university enrollment increased 2%, while the total state college and private school enrollment was off 9.8% and the junior college enrollment down 5.1%.

Commission Director Michael Winterhalter also said that the commission-calculated full-time equivalent enrollment in the state dropped even more than headcount enrollment, indicating students are taking generally lighter course loads.

Last Minute Tax Filers Keep IRS 'Pretty Busy'

Internal Revenue Service offices in Lincoln and Omaha were "pretty busy" Monday as taxpayers attempted to meet the April 16 midnight filing deadline.

According to Charles O'Grady, public information director for the Omaha IRS District, the Ogden, Utah, Service Center should receive approximately 140,000 Nebraska tax returns about Thursday. This amounts to a little over five tons of mail.

As of Saturday, the Ogden Center had already received 420,000 Nebraska returns. Hearing that three days before the deadline, approximately one-third of Nebraska taxpayers had yet to file returns.

O'Grady said Nebraska has a 70% rate of refunds this year as compared to 63% in 1971. The average refund is $305, up $94 from last year.

"Increased personal exemption and changes in withholding tables resulted in the increases," O'Grady said.

He also said the most frequent error made by taxpayers was the use of the wrong line.

"This means our forms are a little too complicated or taxpayers are not very careful," O'Grady said. He added that last minute filers tended to make the most errors.

What happens if a taxpayer failed to meet last night's deadline?

He will be charged one-half of one per cent interest each month on the unpaid balance. This amounts to six per cent interest each year with a maximum 25 per cent being charged.

Failure to pay your income tax will result in an added four and one-half per cent interest each month on taxes owed. Willful failure to file a tax return could bring a $10,000 fine or one year in prison. However, O'Grady said this clause usually is applied only after several years of delinquency.

Charlie Chaplin Celebrates 84th

NICE, France (AP) — Movie comedian Charlie Chaplin celebrated his 84th birthday Monday, but not alone.

To celebrate the occasion, he lunched at a Riviera restaurant. So did his wife, five children, one grandchild and two daughters-in-law, in Nice on holiday with him from Switzerland.

Snow Flake Is A Father

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — "Copito de Nieve" — Little Snow Flake — claimed here to be the world's only white gorilla. The father of a black gorilla at the Barcelona Zoo, officials reported Monday.

It is the first gorilla ever born in Spain, and she weighed a little over four pounds at birth Saturday.

The mother is Noengue, a 10-year-old, 138-pound Guinean gorilla.

Copito de Nieve is 9 and weighs 159 pounds. He was brought to the Barcelona Zoo from former Spanish Guinea where he was captured in 1966.

The new baby gorilla has been put into an incubator and is being fed with milk every four hours.

Not All Imports Meet Approval Of Golda Meir

JERUSALEM (AP) — Not all of Israel's imports meet with the approval of Premier Golda Meir, sometimes accused of being a bit puritanical.

"I see a new phenomenon, with what delight we swallow everything that comes from abroad, without criticism," she told an interviewer. "God help anyone who criticizes something — theater, hit songs, clothing. 'I look at my friends and I notice their sideburns are getting longer. Why? Because someone in the world decided it's nice that way. And someone in Paris decided that skirts above the knee are nice'."

RECYCLING FOR FUN

"You can call it your homemade playground," said a delighted, 10-year-old user of this novel facility in Harrisburg, Pa. "You can build it yourself...it's better to do it yourself," explained another. There are now about 25 of these "recycled playgrounds" across Pennsylvania, an idea dreamed up and carried out by ex contractor Paul Hogan. They use what could be described as discarded junk—transformed by the kids' imagination into endless series of funny and fantastic playthings.

The basic materials are such things as empty cable spools, old inner tubes, wheelbarrows, pipes, rope and pulleys. These cast-offs are cheap, and the less work of pre-assembling done with them the better, from the children's point of view. The playgrounds need little maintenance. And their popularity is proved by the enthusiastic support of their users.

Good News.

This paper will work in your yard.

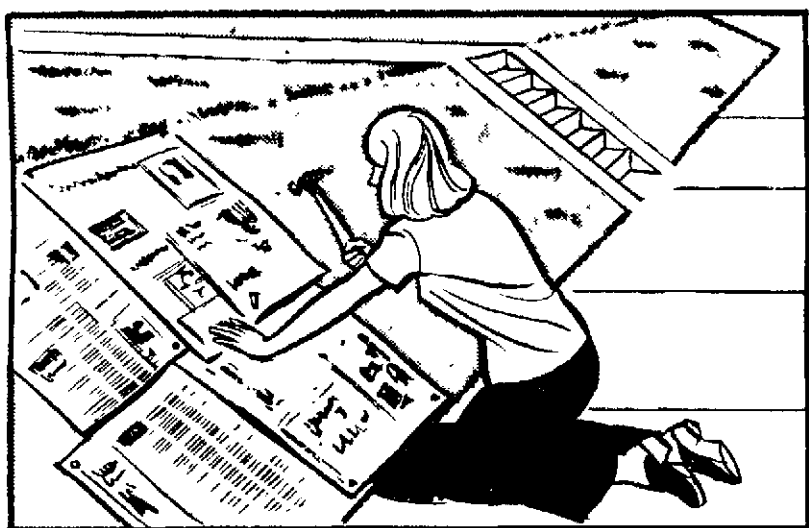

After you've read this paper take it outside and let it keep on helping you.

This paper is good for growing things. And, used right, the newspaper won't pollute. It's 100% biodegradable.

Here are six suggestions from an expert on organic gardening. As indicated, some ideas are for immediate use and others can be saved for later.

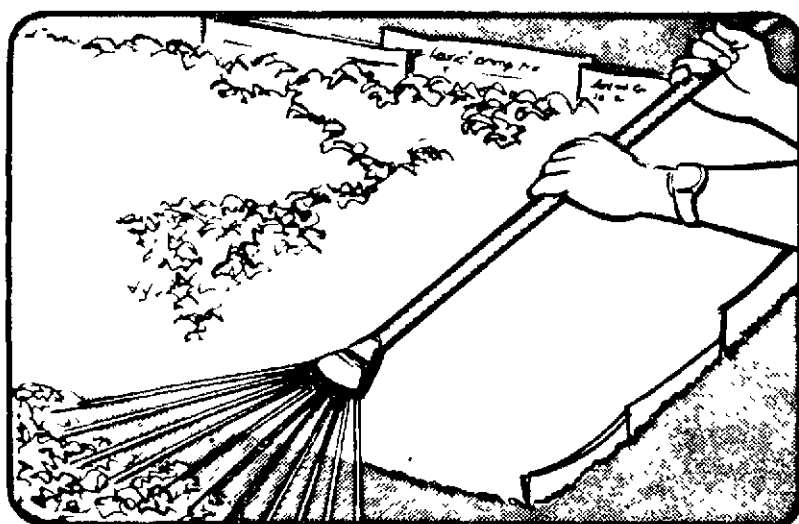

Here's one for now.

For erosion control on a slope, lay the paper flat. Any amount of thickness up to 1". Keep in place with nails or wood spikes. Stab holes for planting sprigs or runners.

Try this after raking.

If you're planning to put leaves and grass clippings in a compost pile, line the pit you dig with a generous helping of newspapers.

It is good to have woody material like newsprint decomposing in your soil. The breakdown products of wood's lignin add different nutrients and textures, and they're long-lasting.

You need to add nitrogen to cause decomposition. Coffee grounds will do. If you're in a hurry, use manure tea or fish emulsion.

Newsprint ink is like dessert. The ink contains valuable trace minerals in the seaweed-derived binder. And its carbon and grease are used by some soil organisms.

Beat the cold with this.

Do you have plants that need protection from winter cold? Tuck them in with this paper. Ensheathed in plastic pillow casing, sheets of newspaper can be quilted and shaped into open-ended cones to be set over the plants.

For springtime.

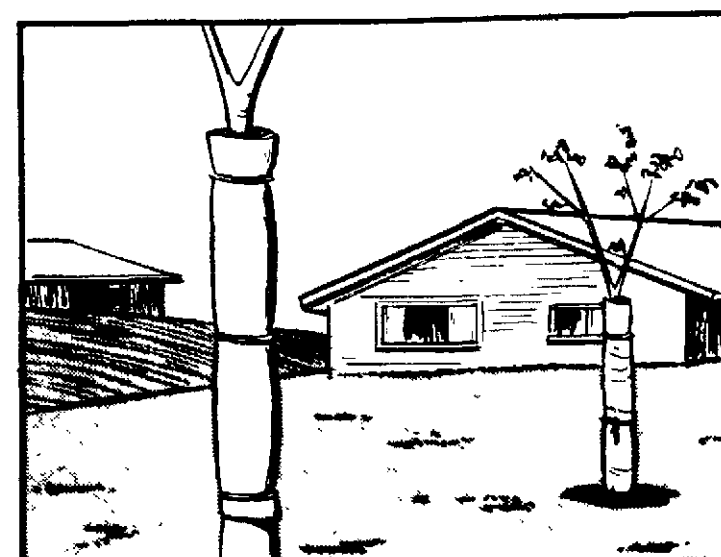

If your garden doesn't get a lot to eat and drink, the plants will wither and the soil will dry out and blow away. Wherever your plants aren't you can lay newspapers flat and overlapped, covered with compost.

If you don't have compost to hold down the newspapers, enclose them in a wrapping of wire fencing loosely shaped for easy refill.

Nylon bird netting is tough enough for such a wrap, too, would be easier on your hands and doesn't deteriorate. Simply stretch the netting along the planting row over the paper mulch. Hold down with large hairpins made of wire hangers.

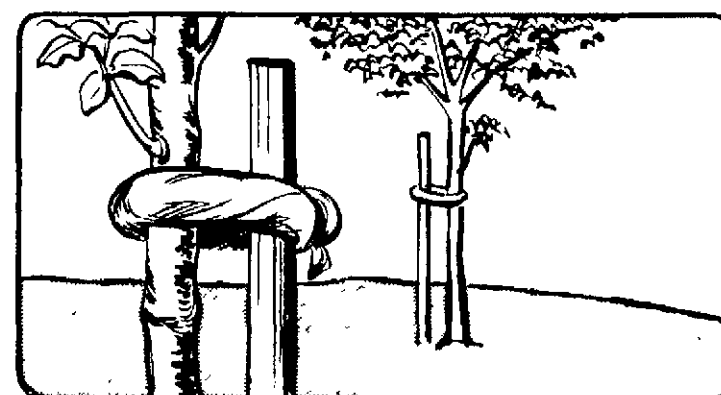

For summertime.

Newspaper wrapped around young tree trunks protects them from sunscald.

For anytime.

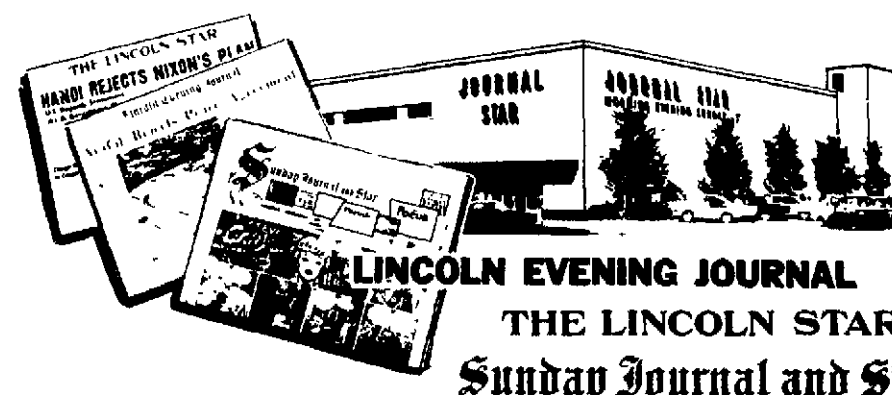

Nylon stockings filled with a roll of paper make gentle ties for fastening young trees to their supports.

The same kind of protection is possible if you use older trees to support a clothesline.

You also can use these paper-stuffed stockings at lawn edges to keep the grass from spreading.

These tips grew out of an article by botanist Dr. Bargula Rateaver in Clear Creek, an environmental viewpoint magazine published at One South Park, San Francisco, California 94107

Bellevue Schools Won't Close Early

Bellevue (AP) — The Bellevue public schools will not close early this spring, despite the district's $1.5 million loss in federal funding.

Supt. Richard Triplett said Sunday the Bellevue School District is working with the Nebraska congressional delegation and "we're sure they'll pursue all avenues to see that we have enough money."

The $1.5 million is the amount the district loses under a formula announced in Washington for the allocation of federal impact aid to education for the remainder of this year.

Impacted aid is designated for school districts near federal military installations which enroll many children of federal military and civilian personnel.

For Bellevue, the loss represents about 20% of what the district budgeted for the 1972-73 year.

Dr. Triplett said the congressional delegation would be able to help the school locate enough money to stay open. Bellevue enrolls children of Offutt Air Force Base military personnel.

FDA Orders Children-Proof Drug Packaging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration Monday ordered that prescription drugs for oral dosage be packaged in containers that most children can't open.

The action was taken under the Poison Preventive Packaging Act. It will become effective one year from now.

An FDA announcement said: "Testing protocol for special packaging requires that 85 per cent of a test group of children, ages 41 to 52 months, be unable to open the container in a 5-minute period and that 80 per cent fail in another 5-minute period after a demonstration of how to open it. Ninety per cent of a test group of 100 adults must be able to open and close the container."

Services Slated For W. Misfeldt

Blair (UPI) — Services will be held Tuesday afternoon at the First Lutheran Church here for Wayne Misfeldt, 46, of Blair, who died of an apparent heart attack Saturday.

He was past president of the Missouri Valley Rescue Association. He was also co-chairman of a committee organizing the International Rescue Unit Association convention in Omaha this August.

Montana Willing to Share Coal, Sets Price

HELENA, Mont. (AP) - Montana is willing to share its vast reserves of coal with the energy-starved nation — for a price.

For its cut, Montana wants strip-mined land restored to agricultural use. And it wants money poured into the state treasury to reimburse the people and generations yet to come for the loss of a natural resource.

The state's philosophy about its rich deposits of low-sulphur coal — the kind in escalating demand in light of the growing energy crisis and strict antipollution laws — was put into law earlier this year.

The legislature, at the urging of Gov. Thomas L. Judge, has approved stringent new reclamation and tax laws which give the state the authority to refuse any strip-mining application and revoke any approved permit if the environment appears endangered.

The actions come as the demand for high-quality coal escalates. A U.S. House task force has recommended a $1 billion a year increase in research efforts into the energy crisis, with calls for emphasis on replacing the nation's dependency on Middle East-produced oil with synthetic coal gas.

In his message to the legislature, Judge said Montana should write into law the strongest controls on strip mining in the country. The legislature responded by:

- Raising from 10 cents a ton to 40 cents a ton the tax on the highest quality coal available in the rich Fort Union deposit which also cuts through Wyoming and North Dakota.
- Giving the state land commission authority to immediately reject any strip mining application in scenic or historic areas.
- Barring contour strip mining, the layered approach that eats into the sides of many Appalachian hillsides.
- Establishing a bond of up to $5,000 per acre on coal companies to insure that the land is reclaimed in its original contour and that a vegetative cover is grown and maintained.
- Creating a $100-million trust fund for use in improvement of the state's environment. The fund will be financed by a tax of one-half of one per cent on the gross value of all minerals mined in the state.

The laws, opposed heavily by the coal industry, have just taken effect. Coal companies still have time to submit strip-mine applications for the estimated 13 million tons of coal that will be extracted this year. Then the state will begin making its rulings.

KC 'Blue Bombers' Setting AL West Pace

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Jack McKeon's Blue Bombers, known in some quarters as the Kansas City Royals, returned home Sunday night with a two-game lead on the field in the American League West.

The Royals nipped up the Chicago White Sox, sweeping a three-game series over the weekend, and caused Manager Chuck Tanner to say, "Gang-busters, the '27 Yankees—that's what they look like to me."

While winning seven of their first nine—six on the road—the Royals have scored 68 runs, an average of 7 1/2 per game.

McKeon, though, isn't ready to lay claim to the division title yet.

"We realize there are 162 games," he said Monday. "But it's most encouraging that we're doing things we've never done before. It's still very early and things are going our way. But nobody is giving us anything either."

"We feel like we're as good as any club in the American League and we're not going to give an inch."

The Royals open a 10-game homestand, their longest of the season, Tuesday night against the world champion Oakland Athletics. The White Sox and Milwaukee invade later.

McKeon's expectations for the homestand are modest, considering the Royals have scored 12 runs in four different games so far.

"I'd just like for us to continue to play the same kind of baseball we've been playing," said McKeon. "I'd hope we can play 600 ball for the stand."

Big stick so far has been first baseman John Mayberry, who has driven in 14 runs with three homers. Ahead of Mayberry in the batting order, Fred Patek (.343) Cookie Rojas (.368) and Amos Otis (.293) also are off to great starts.

Of the non-pitchers, only two players on the 25-man roster have not collected a hit as yet. Shortstop Bobby Floyd has one at-bat and catcher Fran Healy has not seen action yet. As a team, the Royals are hitting .281.

The three-game set with Oakland is important to the Royals. The A's won 11 of 18 games last year, but are off to a 2-5 start this season.

Tuesday night's pitching matchup pits Vida Blue (1-0) against Wayne Simpson (1-1).

Anderson Captures Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Jon Anderson of Eugene, Ore., virtually overlooked in a whopping field of 1,384, returned the Boston A.A. Marathon laurel wreath to the United States Monday with a smashing victory in the 77th annual Patriots Day classic.

Anderson, a 23-year-old Cornell University graduate whose father is mayor of Eugene, sprinted into the lead with six miles to go and hit the finish all alone, becoming the first American winner in five years.

Despite balmy weather and a blistering sun, Anderson covered the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 16 minutes, 3 seconds, nearly five minutes off the record set by England's Ron Hill three years ago.

Anderson wore down defending champion Olavi Suomalainen of Finland on the second of three hills and pulled away to win by a comfortable 500 yards.

Tom Fleming, a 21-year-old student at Wayne, N.J., closed strongly to take second in 2:17.46.

Suomalainen was stricken with a cramp in his right side in surrendering the lead, but gamely shook it off to finish third in 2:18.31. Ironically, it was on the same hill that the Finn pulled away to victory in 1972.

Bernard Plain of England, was fourth in 2:21.01, and Jeff Galloway of the Florida Track Club fifth in 2:21.27.

Anderson became the first American winner since Ambrose Burfoot in 1968. Only two other Americans, Johnny "the Elder" Kelley and Johnny "the Younger" Kelley, have won the B.A.A. since World War II.

Fish Population Die-Off Linked To Bacteria

Lake McConaughy's fish population may be on the road to a clean bill of health, but Game and Parks Commission biologists feel it is still too soon to say for sure.

Cause of the unusually heavy die-off of fish discovered in mid-March has now been diagnosed by the Federal Fish Disease Laboratory at Tishomingo, Okla., as hemorrhagic septicemia.

It was found in samples of carp, walleye, and white bass. The lone rainbow trout sent for analysis showed no traces of the disease, which is caused by an unusually heavy infestation of a bacteria common to all lakes.

Bacteria can be expected to multiply as the weather warms, according to federal biologists. However, fish may be better able to resist the disease as their rate of metabolism increases with warmer temperatures.

"We'll have to wait and see what develops," said Bob Thomas, chief of the Commission's Aquatic Wildlife Division.

"Very little is known about this disease because outbreaks are so rare. Science just hasn't had the opportunity to study this thing under natural circumstances, so no remedy is available.

"It will have to run its course, and we don't have enough facts about the disease to predict just what the course will be."

Most of the fish involved had died in late January or early February, and there has been very little mortality since. Most of the dead fish were carp and white bass, but some walleye were involved.

"There are still infected fish in the lake, but we don't know if they will be able to overcome this thing. If they can't, we will have a few more dead fish," Thomas said.

The disease is brought on by unusual stress. Federal biologists speculated the outbreak may have been caused by

Anglers Avoid Bad Weather

Another weekend of bad weather has further postponed the usual spring surge of angling success, according to the Game and Parks Commission.

Both fish and fishermen seem to be waiting for sunshine, as those anglers plying the lakes and streams have had little success, except in the Panhandle area.

Outdoor activity across the state as reported by conservation officers includes:

- PANHANDLE
 - Nine Mile Creek (Scotts Bluff and Morrill counties) — occasional pan-sized trout hitting worms.
 - Lake Minatare — Walleye from two to four pounds hitting bank-fished minnows; occasional northern pike hitting minnows or doll flies fished off the face of the dam.
 - West Kimball Lake (upper end) — Two- to three-pound rainbow trout on worms and trout eggs.
 - Smith Lake (Sheridan County) — Northern, two to four pounds, in minnows
- SOUTHWEST
 - Swanson Reservoir (Trenton) — A few walleye on trotted artificials or doll flies fished off the face of the dam; a few catfish from two to five pounds on cut bait and shad.
 - Enders Reservoir — A few catfish, two to five pounds, hitting cut bait and shad.
 - Johnson Lake (Lexington) — A few white bass to 12 inches; walleye to four pounds taking doll flies.
 - Tri County Canal (Lexington) — Catfish up to six pounds on shad.
- SOUTHEAST
 - Branched Oak Lake (Metcalf) — A few bluegill and bass.
 - Farm ponds (Butler, Saunders, and Polk counties) — a few bluegills and bluegills.
 - SAND HILLS
 - Merritt Reservoir (Valentine) — trout fishing fair.

Revision Seen

Regulations for Nebraska's 1973 deer, antelope, cottontail, and squirrel seasons will be set at the April 27 meeting of the Game and Parks Commission, following a public hearing and testimony from game biologists and the general public.

Opening dates have already been set on these seasons, but other regulations must be decided at the April meeting. For cottontails and squirrels, these include bag and possession limits, shooting hours, and closing dates.

The deer and antelope hearings will involve regulations on both firearm and archery seasons. This will include shooting hours, closing dates, units to be open, the number and types of permits in each unit.

On May 10, Nebraska residents may begin applying for deer and antelope permits, and any application received through June 1 will be considered for a June 18 drawing to allocate permits in oversubscribed units.

LAP Moves To Study Spinning Off Programs

The Lincoln Action Program (LAP) board of directors voted Monday night to investigate the possibility of "spinning off" more programs to community resources and agencies.

This action is an attempt to salvage programs which will be defunded by the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity by President Nixon.

The board said emphasis will be placed on those programs which are to lose all their funds and the requirement for low-income participation in decision making capacities will be encouraged.

Other proposals to be considered are to form a sister corporation to carry on after the phase out or to try to consolidate with other existing service organizations.

Board president Gerry Henderson requested that concrete proposals for alternatives be presented at the next meeting.

Busy Beekeeper

Prague (AP) — Czechoslovak beekeepers oversee 717,000 colonies that supply 2,000 tons of honey each year, the news agency CTK reported.

Leighton Wesel in a report on the activities of the Task Force for Survival said that letters have been written to congressmen and several state senators have been contacted.

Wesel said that while the senators have been sympathetic to LAP's problems they have not been able to give the board much hope.

In other business the board approved an application by Head Start for a supplemental planning grant.

Coalition Denies Street Delays

The Coalition Against the Radial Monday denied charges made by city officials that the proposed charter amendment on roadways would unduly delay construction of other street projects—including 70th.

Coalition Chairman John Stevens Berry said that information received from the State Department of Roads "fully supports our position that this is not true."

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has said the amendment would delay construction of the 70th and So. 27th widening projects and the Cornhusker Hwy. airport access Margaret Connealy told the group that the grant will be used for planning new types of activity in the Head Start program.

She said application has been made for $10,000 to be used for a program containing a minimum of 50 three-year-olds and $2,000 for a program including ten homes for children under three.

It was also announced that board member Jesse Martinez has been elected to the national board of the National Association for Community Development.

The proposed amendment, which will appear on the May 1 ballot, "clearly states that all state and federal laws shall supercede any requirements contained within the amendment," Berry said.

He noted that since those projects are part of the federal-aid system, planning procedures must comply with specified federal guidelines.

The amendment would set planning procedures for roadway projects costing in excess of $15 million. The unanimous vote of the City Council would be needed to proceed with construction of such projects, or failing that, a majority vote of the people.

Sen. George McGovern ... has a suggestion.

The proposed Northeast Radial is projected to cost $30 million.

Berry stated that if the amendment had been in effect four years ago, the Northeast Radial project "would have been properly managed and could have qualified for federal funding."

Citizens' Groups Hoist Banner Of Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citizens groups raised the banner of tax reform in major cities throughout the nation Monday and drew an immediate salute—if little prospect of satisfaction—from sympathizers on Capitol Hill.

Though the demonstrations, rallies, picketing and petition-signings in some 31 localities generally produced small turnouts, organizers vowed it was just the beginning in a grass roots show of force aimed at closing loopholes for the wealthy and reducing the burden of the average taxpayer.

In New York, national director Fred Harris told a "Tax Action Day" crowd of about 1,000 that "we will turn this country around. We will take the rich off welfare."

The former Oklahoma senator, speaking at a rally site near the New York Stock Exchange, attacked capital gains as "one of the biggest loopholes" and named several corporations as "tax avoiders" who force the working man into paying an unfair share of the cost of government.

In Washington, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., urged the House Ways and Means Committee to attach tax reforms to the trade bill sought by President Nixon. Chairman Wilber Mills, D-Ark., had previously indictated that a tax bill would have to await clearance of the trade issue.

"We must enact both bills," said McGovern, adding that it is "interesting that the urgency the White House has given to trade legislation has grown in direct proportion to the threat that the Congress might pass meaningful tax reform."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, told the panel that "tax preferences that cost us many billions of dollars each year must not be allowed to remain" in the tax code.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., declared "the indignation is heightened because we are told that our federal government cannot do what needs to be done in education, in health, in housing, in the redevelopment of our cities and countryside, in the environment, because it lacks the revenues to do it."

In Little Rock, Ark., state AFL-CIO President J. Bill Backer said fellow constituents should let Mills know they want "fair taxes and they want them now."

Among many state and local officeholders who joined the protest, Tax Commissioner Byron Dorgan of North Dakota said the federal income tax has become "a punchboard of gimmicks and special privileges that rewards those that have, and penalizes the family that struggles to pay its bills."

Democratic National Committee member Rudy Ortiz told some 100 persons at a "Lunch Break for a Tax Break" rally in Albuquerque that the Treasury loses as much as $80 billion a year through loopholes and "It's the average taxpayer who is being burdened the most."

In Milwaukee, a group calling itself TNT—for Taxes 'n Taxpayers—drew about 400 persons to a City Hall rally at which spokeswoman Betty Joly called for a three-year freeze on current tax rates.

At the Capitol in Madison, Wis., state Treasurer Charles Smith pinned on a button advocating tax revolt and told a smaller group of demonstrators that while he's "not for less taxes, I'm for them coming from different places."

At St. Louis, the Rev. Bill Matheus, an Episcopal deacon, led about 40 persons to the IRS Building and taped to its doors a scroll calling for lower rates, loophole closing, simpler forms and the spending of more tax revenues in the inner city.

The Georgia Tax Action Coalition celebrated the day by official proclamation of Gov. Jimmy Carter and named the Southern Co. parent of power utilities in four states as its "Tax Avoider of the Week."

The group charged Southern with paying only $17.2 million on $167.5 million in profits in 1971. But Southern's president, Alvin W. Vogtle Jr., argued with those figures, saying the profit totaled $96 million and the firm was merely deferring—not escaping—payment of another $27.5 million in taxes.

Kearney Man Is Jailed In Shootout With Police

Kearney (UPI) — A 25-year-old Kearney man was being held in the Buffalo County Jail Monday night following a shootout with nine law officers at his small northeast Kearney home.

Police said Larry Smith was booked on shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim, assault and battery, willful reckless driving and fleeing to avoid arrest.

Police said the incident occurred after they received a complaint that a motorcycle was being driven through Dryden Park at a high rate of speed. Police said when officers arrived, the suspect had gone.

A short time later, officers were summoned to the nearby Good Samaritan Hospital where police said a motorcycle driver allegedly assaulted a Catholic priest and a nun in front of the hospital.

The incident occurred after the priest reportedly had asked the motorcyclist to quit driving his vehicle on the sidewalk.

Police said a chase ensued and the suspect was followed to his small home where he fired a 12-gauge shotgun at surrounding officers. In addition to police, three state patrolmen and three county sheriff's officers arrived on the scene.

The fire from the house was returned, but no one was hit. Police said the suspect came out of the home without resisting after tear gas was fired into it. A concealed knife was found in his boot.

Beatrice Home Chapel Design Contract Signed

Beatrice — After seven years of planning and solicitation, an all-Faith Chapel for the Beatrice State Home moved a big step toward reality Monday.

A contract was signed by directors of the All-Faith Corporation for architectural planning of the proposed $150,000 structure. James S. Daley of Lincoln will be the architectural firm.

Ed Thieman of Beatrice, president of the sponsoring corporation, said approximately $80,000 has been contributed toward the project. A fund drive is still in progress.

It is anticipated that construction bids will be called for by this fall.

OWN A NEW COAST-TO-COAST STORE TOTAL HARDWARE

As an independent Coast-to-Coast store owner, you would receive continued guidance from one of the oldest franchise companies in America. You would sell name brand sporting goods, hardware, housewares and automotive supplies at competitive prices. And you would be supported by a year round advertising program. With your own store, you would have security for the future and would be a welcome member of the community. Several new stores and some stores now operating in excellent locations are immediately available with as low as $25,000 minimum investment. We will help you arrange additional financing. There is no franchise fee to pay. Find out more about the excellent profit potential of these stores. Take a moment right now to drop us a line or give us a call.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
